

Cubans Step Up Subversive Efforts, Rep. Laird Asserts

Training of Latin Americans Has Been Tripled, He Reports

BY RICHARD P. POWERS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Communists in Cuba in the last few months have tripled their training of Latin American nationals for subversive activities, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R. Wis., said today.

Many Cubans who were taken to the Soviet Union, Laird said, are now returning to Cuba to serve as instructors for Central and South American nationals in guerrilla warfare and subversion.

Laird is a member of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee which gets detailed briefings from top Defense Department and armed services officials in closed sessions.

The real danger in Cuba, Laird said, is not whether missiles or Russian troops are there, "but the capability Russia has now to establish submarine bases anywhere on the island and the keys surrounding Cuba, and use of the base to carry on subversive activities in Latin America."

Laird said the subversive training in Cuba is not a direct threat to the United States. But it is an indirect threat, he said, because of the capability it gives the Soviets to overthrow governments in Central and South America.

Laird also contended that the administration has given out inaccurate information on Cuban developments, adding:

"The administration has got to learn that sometimes it is better to have no comment regarding activities of communism in this hemisphere, rather than give out false information."

Data From McCone

For example, Laird said, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara in his two-hour briefing to the country said there was no evidence of export of Communist subversion from Cuba to Central and South America.

But, Laird said, John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, gave detailed data 10 days after McNamara's appearance on the number of trained Latin American guerrillas, running into the hundreds, who have left Cuba for other countries.

In another instance, Laird said, top state and defense department officials testified there was no evidence of missiles in Cuba prior to last Oct. 10.

But, Laird said, recent testimony by McNamara and McCone show that they had "solid evidence" as early as mid-September that missiles were in Cuba. Laird said this evidence was not from Cuban refugees but from other reliable sources.

Ambush Leader Executed for Plot To Kill De Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — Lt. Col. Jean-Marie Bastien-Thiry was executed today for leading the ambush attempt to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle.

Charles de Gaulle had granted clemency to two others sentenced to death with Bastien-Thiry. They were Lt. Alain Debougre and the late de la Tocnaye, 36, reportedly the deputy leader of the plot, and Jacques Prevost, 31, a veteran of the Indochina war and Dien Bien Phu.

Presumably their sentences were commuted to life imprisonment.

Bastien-Thiry, 35, confessed during his 26-day trial that he masterminded the assassination attempt last Aug. 22. He was sentenced to death last week by a military tribunal. De Gaulle denied him presidential clemency.

He was the first man executed for trying to kill De Gaulle.

Some minor flooding continued in some parts of Pennsylvania. Two brothers, age 7 and 4, drowned yesterday in a deep puddle along the Blanchard River near Ottawa, in northwest Ohio. The puddle formed from the overflow of the river last week.

Appleton's cooperative observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., reported no snow, with a high Sunday of 23 and an overnight low of 14. The temperature at 9 a.m. today was 31.

State roads this morning were reported in generally good winter driving condition.

Heavy Snow Warnings Out

Weatherman Says Two to Six Inches Should Fall Today

Heavy snow warnings for today and tonight were issued this morning by the U.S. Weather Bureau, Austin Straubel Field, Green Bay.

The bureau said there would be two to six inches of heavy, wet snow accumulating by tonight.

Temperatures should drop to 25 above tonight and rise to 34 Tuesday, according to the bureau.

Snow already had hit some areas of the nation this morning.

A late winter snowstorm swept out of the southern Rockies into the west central high plains and into parts of the north central region. Heavy wet snow was reported in some areas of Kansas.

In the northeast, snow squalls off Lake Ontario, with winds up to 45 miles an hour, blocked main roads in Lewis County with drifts. Earlier yesterday, blowing drifting snow closed sections of three highways in Wyoming County, New York. Snow was in prospect tonight for southern and western sections of New England, spreading into Maine tomorrow.

Floods Receding

Rivers and streams continued to recede in most of the flood-stricken sections of the Ohio River Valley and in some southern states. But more rain was indicated in many areas during the day. Last week's floods, which drove thousands from their homes, caused millions of dollars damage to property.

Iraqi Vice Premier Predicts Merger With Syria, U. A. R.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Iraq's deputy premier, Ali Saleh el Saadi, said today plans are under way for an eventual merger or federation embracing Syria, Iraq and the United Arab Republic.

Recent revolutions in both Iraq and Syria have placed admirers of U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser in positions of power.

El Saadi told a Damascus news conference the Iraqi Communist party is now "absolutely and completely banned and will never be allowed to operate again because we regard it as a fifth column of Moscow."

Syria's new government was urged to join four other pro-Nasser states in a joint military command as a step toward uniting the Arab sphere from the Atlantic to the Persian Gulf.

Counterpart Funds Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., squirmed two good-looking female assistants to the Lido night club in Paris last summer and paid his way with U.S.-owned francs. The night on the town provoked outcries back home.

Powell had a quick defense. He quoted Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon as saying if Powell and other congressmen didn't use these francs, the U.S. government would have to burn them.

Prudence Needed

"This is money going right down the drain," Powell said.

Dillon said he had no recollection of making the remarks and added that he felt these funds "require the same prudent management and careful handling as any other moneys of the government."

In fact, other administration officials say that most funds that a congressman uses funds like these, he forces the United States to buy more foreign currencies with American dollars.

Powell's night on the town, the outcry, his defense, and the denial by Dillon reflect one of the most complex and massive problems in American international finance.

Throughout the world, the United States owns more than $33 million worth of rupees, pounds, dinars, zlotys, kyats and other foreign money. But the United States can't or won't use most of it now.

In Poland, for example, U.S.-owned Polish zlotys total more than $100 million. But every year the United States dips into its own gold to pay $1.4 million in U.S. Social Security and other benefits to residents of Poland.

In most cases, legal limitations, diplomacy, and economics prevent the United States from using all this foreign money that accumulates as a result of U.S. foreign aid.

Under U.S. laws, in fact, more than half the money, while American owned, must be used for the benefit of other countries. And, according to U.S. officials, the United States would rock and perhaps wreck the economies of other countries if it ever spent the rest of the money in one swoop.

"We would cause inflation," said Bartlett Harvey, chief of the Economic Progress Division of the Agency for International Development. "We would hurt the very countries we are trying to help. We would end up spending more American dollars to help them fight the inflation."

"Better Than Nothing"

Even such a critic of foreign aid as Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., agrees that little more use can be made of this huge pot of U.S.-owned money.

"No improvement can be made in this part of the program," Passman said. "It's like having a whole barrel of post-dated checks. It's better than having nothing."

"The wrong," he continued, "is in making the contracts that acquired this money in the first place. We could be a little less

Auto Accidents Take 13 Lives In Wisconsin

6 Perish When Train Hits Car in Monroe County

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A woman and five young people were killed late Sunday when their automobile was struck by a fast moving train in Monroe County.

The six deaths and six other fatalities over the weekend brought about the worst weekend highway traffic toll of the year.

The previous weekend toll was a week ago when 11 died.

The 1963 traffic death count now is 114, five more than on this date a year ago.

Thomas Heimerl, 24, of Rubicon was killed early today when his car went out of control on State Highway 83 south of Hartford. He was alone in the car. Washington County authorities said the auto apparently was traveling at high speed.

Killed Sunday at the small north-central Wisconsin community of Tunnel City when their car was struck by a North Western "400" passenger train were Mrs. Helena Sherwood, 35, of Warren, her three children and her two nieces. The Sherwood children were David, 13, Sharon 11, and Patricia 9. The nieces were Carol Woods, 16, of Warren and Edith Paddock, 16, Wisconsin Rapids.

How Accident Occurred

Monroe County authorities said that the car driven by Mrs. Sherwood waited at one crossing until a Milwaukee Road passenger train, southbound had passed. The car then pulled slowly onto parallel tracks of the North Western Railway and into the path of the "400," northbound from Chicago to Mankato, Minn.

Mrs. Allen Lind, who lives near the crossing, saw the crash from a window of her home.

"I heard the train," she said.

Ex-Convicts Force Officers Into Desert Where Partner Is Slain

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — plain clothes, had stopped a suspect's car about 10 p.m. Saturday in downtown Hollywood. Its rear license plate light was off and the car matched the description of one used in several hold-ups.

Two suspects, later identified as Gregory Ulas Powell, 29, and Jimmy Lee Smith, jumped out of the car. One pointed a .32-caliber revolver at Campbell.

"I could have shot the other suspect," said Hettinger. "but Campbell would have been shot."

Took Guns

The men took the officers' guns and forced them into their old car. With Campbell driving and Hettinger in the back seat, the suspects made the officers take them northward on heavily traveled U.S. 99, the main inland north-south route.

"They knew where they wanted to go," said Hettinger.

Near Mettler Station, 25 miles south of Bakersfield, the plainclothesmen were ordered out into a field.

Powell asked Campbell, "have you ever heard of the little Lindbergh law?" When Campbell said "yes," Powell shot him.

The kidnapers apparently referred to a California law which provides the death penalty for kidnapping that involves harm to the victim.

TOMAHAWK (AP) — Damage was estimated at $150,000 in a fire that destroyed Jim's Logging Camp, a well-known supper club early Sunday.

Firemen from Tomahawk and Merrill succeeded in saving an 8-unit motel built on the south wing of the club. No injuries were reported.

Air Force May Lose Dyna-Soar Space Glider

McNamara Doubts Project Justifies Additional Cost

BY FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force faces possible loss or severe cutback of another of its cherished projects—the manned space glider called Dyna-Soar.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara reportedly has strong doubts the space glider program is worth the additional $500 million it would take to complete it.

McNamara and his scientists apparently believe the Dyna-Soar would duplicate work to be done by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's two-man Gemini orbital flights. Gemini, in which the Air Force has a minor share, is closer to flight than is Dyna-Soar.

Project to be Reviewed

The defense secretary has set in motion a review of the Dyna-Soar project and has told the Air Force, in effect, to try to justify moving ahead with it.

The Air Force—which contends there is no comparison between the two projects—is mustering data and arguments to present to the tough-minded Pentagon chief.

Its mood was underscored by Lt. Gen. James Ferguson, the Air Force's deputy chief of staff for research and development, who said "we think it is a most critical part of the national space program."

Death or major curtailment of the manned space glider would hand the Air Force its third serious defeat within the past year. The others came on McNamara's refusal to permit full development of the 2,000-mph RS70 reconnaissance-strike plane and junking of the bomber-launched Skybolt missile.

The Air Force has significant congressional backing for its Dyna-Soar, now officially called the X20, and for its so-far frustrated ambitions for a big-scale military space program.

But if McNamara should decide against the Dyna-Soar, it is unlikely congressional outcries will budge him.

Report on Manpower

Kennedy submitted his message to Congress along with a comprehensive Labor Department inventory of manpower resources and their utilization since World War II and forecasts of what is likely to happen in the future.

At the rate the economy is going, he said, unemployment will rise by 1967 to 5.5 million, or 7 per cent of the work force.

Among other things, the President reported:

—In the 15-year period 1947-62, the labor force increased 21 per cent but employment increased only 17 per cent, with consequently rising unemployment.

—Nonfarm employment rose an average 900,000 a year in the 1947-57 decade, but since then has been rising less than 500,000 a year, or as Kennedy said, at a rate "not nearly enough to keep up."

Billion Work Days Lost

In 1962 alone, time lost — because of average 4 million unemployment and because some 2.7 million workers wanted full-time employment but found only part-time work—amounted to a waste of 1 billion potential work days.

Kennedy said this was equivalent to shutting down all production in the nation for over three weeks.

—For each of the past five years the rate of unemployment ing on his tax cut proposals and other programs advanced to spur economic growth and job expansion.

Heavy Cost to Nation

"Our continued underuse of human and physical (plant) capacities," Kennedy said, "is a heavy cost to the nation."

"This is money going right down the drain," Powell said.

Dillon said he had no recollection of making the remarks and added that he felt these funds "require the same prudent management and careful handling as any other moneys of the government."

In fact, other administration officials say that most funds that a congressman uses funds like these, he forces the United States to buy more foreign currencies with American dollars.

Powell's night on the town, the outcry, his defense, and the denial by Dillon reflect one of the most complex and massive problems in American international finance.

Throughout the world, the United States owns more than $33 million worth of rupees, pounds, dinars, zlotys, kyats and other foreign money. But the United States can't or won't use most of it now.

In Poland, for example, U.S.-owned Polish zlotys total more than $100 million. But every year the United States dips into its own gold to pay $1.4 million in U.S. Social Security and other benefits to residents of Poland.

In most cases, legal limitations, diplomacy, and economics prevent the United States from using all this foreign money that accumulates as a result of U.S. foreign aid.

Under U.S. laws, in fact, more than half the money, while American owned, must be used for the benefit of other countries. And,

Annual St. Patrick Day Luncheon, Style Show Arranged by Pythian Sisterhood

Miss Karen Kingsley, left, will show a four-piece casual outfit, consisting of blouse, skirt, culottes and slacks. The skirt is reversible, creating several combinations of pretty summertime looks. Mrs. Wilmer Saiberlich, above, chooses a navy silk shantung dress with its own jacket for her show appearance. Her hat is a striking combination of shades of pink blooms.

Fashion aware women of the Fox Cities will have one more opportunity to view spring offerings when they attend the annual St. Patrick Day Luncheon and Style Show, sponsored by the Pythian Sisters at 1 p.m. Saturday at Castle Hall. Mrs. Waldemar Klein and Mrs. Earl Berhow are co-chairmen of the affair. A card party will be held after the show.

The fresh fashion look will include hats, shoes, children's dress and playwear, youthful attire and styles for the mature woman. Cooperating are Newmans, Big Show Store, Shirley's, Brook's, and Mary Jane's Beautyland.

Members of the luncheon committee are Mrs. Fred Matthews and Mrs. Walter Bogan; publicity, Mrs. David Meyer, style show, Mrs. Paul Tusler, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Rogers. Models are Mmes. W. G. Bryant, Wilmer Saiberlich, James Dorn, LeRoy Borsch and David Meyer, and Misses Alice Ruth, Karen Kingsley, Judy Johnson and Susan Abendroth. Child models will be Cynthia Rogers, Rori Meyer, Nick Zylstra, Billie Tusler and Polly Johnson.

Rori Meyer and Billie Tusler, above, show the spring look for children. Rori's orange, yellow, green and blue print shirt is a cotton knit and her sailor hat sports a chicken design. Billie wears a classic blazer of rayon, suspender short pants, and a white shirt.

Miss Alice Ruth and Cynthia Rogers might well be taking an Easter stroll. Miss Ruth's two-piece beige dress is a textured cotton, cut in this year's favorite A-line. She chooses beige and brown accessories to compliment the young clean look. Cynthia's mint green dress has a smocked bodice and white pique collar. Black patent leather shoes, white gloves and a white straw hat complete her outfit. The pair is among the models who will show the fun and fancy good looks of the 1963 season at the Pythian Sisters St. Patrick Day show Saturday.

Missions Topic for Women's Meeting

Mrs. Carl Granger will serve as chairman of the 8 p.m. Tuesday general meeting of the Trinity Lutheran Church Women at the parish hall. The work of missions in Hong Kong, Korea, Okinawa and Taiwan and the needs of the missions in personnel, facilities, equipment and supplies will be discussed. Mrs. Ingolf B. Kindem, Mrs. Harley Barney, Mrs. Hubert Hamel and Mrs. Granger will conduct a panel discussion on "The Rim of East Asia". A film, "The Rim of Tomorrow," will be shown. The Rebecca Circle has charge of the tea, under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. Sherman Frinak and Mrs. Loyal Wichman. Mrs. Walter Heil will lead the devotions. President of the organization is Mrs. J. N. Otteson.

Bridge Club Meets

HORTONVILLE — Mrs. Wilbur Hoier was hostess when the Double Four Bridge Club met Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Lloyd Nickel and Mrs. Lloyd Schulz. Mrs. Ronald Hooyman and Mrs. John Steffen were guests. On March 21 the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Floyd Olk.

At Left, Miss Judy Johnson and Mrs. James Dorn compare notes on spring outfits. Miss Johnson wears a black suit of silk rayon with a rolled collar accented by a frog closing. She wears black mesh shoes with patent trim and a hat adorned with pink flowers. Mrs. Dorn's spring coat is black and collarless, with neck interest in the cut of a modified princess line. Her hat has a white straw brim and a nylon chiffon crown over a net base. Shoes and purse are black patent.

Committee Members discussed arrangements recently at K. P. Hall. They are Mrs. Waldemar Klein, Mrs. David Meyer, Mrs. Fred Mathews and Mrs. Paul Tusler. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Care Used
Partner

You can tell a great restaurateur by the care he takes to keep the frown from a guest's face. Dave Harlig, of California's famous Sportsman's Lodge, takes the same care at the bridge table to keep the frown from his partner's face.

West began with two high clubs and then the jack of clubs, forcing Harlig to ruff. Since declarer had to lose a spade trick sooner or later, his contract would depend on avoiding the loss of a trump trick.

How to play the trumps? East surely had three or four trumps, if the bidding meant anything. If East had only three trumps, one finesse would be enough; but West might have the doubleton queen in this case.

There would be even more trouble if East had four trumps. Two finesses would be needed, but South would have to use one of dummy's trumps to ruff a diamond. How do you take two finesses with only one trump?

Helpful Opponents
Harlig looked at his opponents "You look like nice, helpful people," he remarked. "Something tells me that one of you is going to give me game and rubber."

So saying, he led a spade to dummy's king and returned a spade toward his hand. If East had started with only one spade he might ruff the second round, but then South would be able to play low, saving the ace of spades for later.

As it happened, East had to follow suit. Harlig took the ace of spades, cashed the top diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy, and ruffed another club in his own hand.

Now Harlig gave up the spade loser. He had only K-J-10 of trumps in his own hand, with A-8 of trumps and a spade in dummy. No matter who won the spade trick and no matter what was returned, South was sure to win the last three tricks. The opponents had to take the trump finesse for him, thus yielding the game and rubber.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S, K 7 3 2, H, A 8 3, D K 6, C 9 7 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one spade. You have too much for a raise to two hearts, but not enough for a jump to three hearts. Bid your own suit first, and raise hearts later.

Cut Flowers Enhance Beauty, Charm of Home

Cut flowers, when properly placed, can greatly enhance the beauty and charm of rooms in your home or apartment.

A simple flower bouquet used almost anywhere in a room will add a bright and cheerful note. However, by following some basic guidelines you can so place your cut flowers to get the best advantage from their beauty, color and design.

As a general rule, use low arrangements of flowers for table centerpieces, low coffee tables and under mirrors and pictures. Place dramatic, impressive masses of flowers on large tables, or use them for large wall areas or to flank pictures and mirrors.

In addition to using flowers in proper proportion to the space available, and in relation to other accessories, vary the effect by employing different basic flower designs—such as the vertical, crescent, Hogarth curve, symmetrical arrangements.

Here are some flower arranging and placement tips involving the use of Iris and Tulips which are considered "good buys" in March because they are in plentiful supply:

For either side of a starkly modern fireplace, use a vertical arrangement of five or seven Iris blooms and Iris foliage in a cop-per container. To show the beauty of each bloom, place every flower head so it is separate from the others. The Iris foliage will provide contrast.

For a hall table of chest, or at the end of a buffet table positioned against the wall, use a crescent arrangement of Tulips and Iris blooms as the focal point, with Snapdragons and Scotch Broom curving at both ends.

For the center of a dining table, a mantel or under a picture, use a low horizontal arrangement of Tulips, and their foliage, placed slightly off center, with Snapdragons flowing over both ends.

Asymmetrical designs with a high left side should be placed to the left of the furniture piece, with other accessories to the right. Such arrangements with a high right side should be placed to the right end of the furniture top.

Lists Activities

The Don Bosco Guild will view slides of missions in Nicaragua at the 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday at St. Joseph School.

The Guild will attend the Harlem Globetrotters basketball game Sunday at Menasha High School. They will meet at 6 p.m. at the school.

An evening of recollection is planned for 7 p.m. March 24 at the Monte Alverno Retreat House. A bowling party has been scheduled for March 31.

GREETING BROTHER-IN-LAW

Dear Louise: My brother-in-law has returned home after serving three years overseas. Should I visit him at his home or should I wait until he comes to visit me? Is a gift necessary?

Louise Davis Answers:
I suggest that you call on your brother-in-law as he is on the receiving end after three years overseas. The homecoming doesn't necessitate gifts. It is the sincere welcome that counts.

Your Problems

Pink, Blue Menswear Seems Revolting, Not Revolutionary

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Men make unkind remarks about what we women wear. I'd like to express my views on men's fashions. The thing men call a suit is the most unimaginative, the dullest get-up ever stitched together.

Why must men's suits be so drab? Why always a lifeless grey or a muddy brown? The greys are not even true greys. And the blacks are not true blacks.

Men should rebel against dead colors which have been foisted on them by convention-bound manufacturers. Let them demand electric blue, shocking pink and emerald green. And why not an occasional floral pattern to liven up a dreary day?

Don't say it can't be done, Ann. All it takes is a ball of fire like you to get behind the idea. Will you join me in this great crusade to revolutionize the men's clothing industry? — Lover of Color.

Dear Lover: Sorry, but you'll have to revolutionize the men's clothing industry without this "ball of fire." I haven't the faintest interest in seeing men in shocking pink or electric blue suits.

In the kingdom of our feathered friends the male has the colorful plumage to attract the female. The human male does just fine in his muddy browns and charcoal greys.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with a 33-year-old bachelor for almost four years. Sam's family likes me, religion is no problem, and he is well-set financially. But he is extremely reticent about taking the big step.

Sam wants a home and family and so do I. Last night he told me the stumbling block to our marriage is my "past."

He has heard gossip about me and insists that before we marry I tell him everything so he'll know what he must face in regard to my reputation.

I have no desire to think about my mistakes, much less talk about them. I also fail to see how this knowledge will make him feel better, as he insists. I believe he should accept me as I am and take into account the fact that I have been a faithful sweetheart for over four years. He claims I owe it to him to make a full confession and "clear the air."

My future depends on your answer. — Sleepless Nights

Dear Sleepless: If the air isn't clear by now you can be sure "a full confession," complete with the names and numbers of all the players, will not help.

Sam wants: (A) An escape hatch — "Sorry, but it's all too sordid, my dear. I don't think I could ever trust you now." or (B) A nice fat club to hit you over the head with later.

A man of integrity would not be interested in playing Truth or Consequences.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if I am right or wrong to ask my husband to do this simple thing

Milton is a truck driver. I know he can take a coffee break any time he wants to. He leaves the house every morning at 6:30 a.m. By the time 8 a.m. comes around he is ready for a cup of coffee.

I want Milton to come by the house and take our eight-year-old daughter to school. She is susceptible to colds and is now recovering from the mumps.

He says he can't do it because it may interfere with his job. I believe he is just making up excuses because he doesn't want to be bothered.

Milton thinks you are a smart woman. Maybe he will listen to you. Please print your advice so he can see it — Troubled

Dear Troubled: The advice is for you, not Milton. Your husband isn't driving that truck for kicks, Lady. It's his job and it's your bread and butter. It isn't fair to him — or to his employer — to try to saddle him with family assignments during his working day.

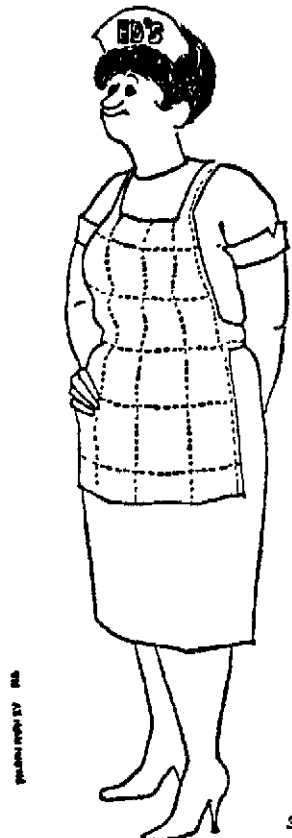

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1963)

SEAMS TO ME Fitting Is Problem

By Patricia Scott

Women run across several very common fitting problems in buying ready-made dresses. Since these dresses are made from standard measurements, your own personal figure problems are not taken into consideration when the patterns are made.

One problem is shoulder lines of set-in sleeves that are too long for your shoulders, causing the armhole to

1. If the pleat is not turned on the straight of the goods, you can re-hem the pleats to correct it.
2. If the top pleats are not tacked properly on a straight pleated skirt or on a skirt having inverted pleats, correct it as shown in figure 2. Lift at the yoke, if the skirt has one, at the waistline or the section or sections that sag. Lift until the pleats fall properly. Then mark a new waistline seam as shown.
3. If the waistline is loose, tighten it by taking in the extra fullness at the seams or make hip darts.
4. If the skirt is too tight, and if seam allowance permits, let out the seams until the skirt falls easily, allowing the pleats to fall in the proper position.
- If Shoulder Line Is Too Long
1. A small amount of length can be removed by trimming off some of the armhole around the top. However, this is pretty tricky. If too much is cut off, the armhole will be too large for the sleeve. So make this alteration with caution.
2. Or you can remove some length by making small darts at the back of the neck. This will pull the shoulder line up a little, but not a large amount.
3. If a great deal must be taken off the shoulder, rip the shoulder seams. Take in the extra length by making small tucks at the back of the neckline or the back shoulder seam. Take in the extra width by making tucks or shirring the front shoulder line.
- Miss Scott is always glad to hear from her readers, and whenever possible will use their questions in her column, but because of the great volume of mail received daily, she cannot answer individual letters.
- Patricia Scott has prepared a booklet, "How to Alter Your Dress

The Ailing House Treatment For Stains

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

BRONZE STAIN ON MARBLE

Q: We have a bronze plaque on white marble at the entrance of our church building. There are stains on the marble below the bronze. How can these be removed?

A: To remove bronze (or copper) stains on marble, try the following method: Mix 4 parts of powdered talc and 1 part of dry sal ammoniac and add ammonia water to make a thick paste. Cover the stains with a layer of the paste. When dry, brush off and repeat treatment, if necessary.

DUSTING BOOKS

Q: I recently bought an old set of encyclopedias. The books are quite dusty. What is the best way to remove the dust without harming the books?

A: The best way to remove the dust is with a vacuum cleaner attachment. Otherwise, use a soft cloth on the book covers. But never rub across the tops of pages. Instead, open each volume and close with a snap (best to do this outdoors if possible).

HARDENED PLASTER ON ALUMINUM TRAY

Q: My son used my aluminum tray when plastering a difficult-to-reach area in the ceiling for the patching plaster. The entire tray is covered with the dried, hardened plaster. I have a box of your "lippings" and came across how to clear mortar off bricks, but could find nothing to remedy my problem. What do you recommend for clearing the tray?

A: Moisten the hardened plaster with water or wet cloths, or a thin oil, until the plaster softens. Then scrape it off with a putty knife or piece of wood, being careful to avoid scratching the aluminum.

WHITE YELLOWS OVER KNOTS

Q: I made a small cabinet of white pine and painted it white to match the other kitchen units. The white has turned yellow over where knots are. How can I correct this condition?

A: Scrape off the paint down to bare wood. Then remove all possible resin and sap from the knot and the area around it with coarse steel wool and turpentine. Wipe off all dust and loose particles and seal the surfaces with a knot sealer (available paint stores) or pure, fresh white shellac or good quality aluminum paint. Then apply desired paint coating.

WALLPAPER DISCOLORED BY BASEBOARD HEAT

Q: Our several-years-old home has baseboard hot water heat. We want to repaper some of the rooms shortly. Above the baseboard radiators the paper is quite badly discolored. How can we avoid having this happen again to the new wallpaper?

A: There is probably some air leakage between the back of the baseboard radiators and the wall. In most cases where radiators of this kind are installed, sheets of thin asbestos paper or aluminum foil are placed between the wall and radiator from the floor to the top and lapped over for about a half-inch on top. Then a quarter-round wood molding is nailed snugly on top of the foil.

SPLITTING FIELDSTONE

Q: Could you please tell me where I can get information on the splitting and laying of fieldstone veneer. I am having a new home built early in the year, and plan on putting fieldstone on the exterior. On the acreage, there is an abundant supply of fieldstone of all sizes, shapes and colors.

A: Unless you are fairly experienced at recognizing cleavage plane, and are handy with a rock hammer and cold chisel, I highly recommend your seeking practical assistance from a monument yard employee. For a pre-arranged fee, he might be glad to take a "man's holiday" and demonstrate how to shape fieldstone. In case this seems to be beyond your talents you can either have the job done professionally or consider one of "prefab" stone which has proved very satisfactory. Good luck!

Auxiliary Assists With Easter Seals

Mrs. Stanley Staudt, past national chaplain and a member of the local unit, received special recognition when the American Legion Auxiliary Past Presidents Parley met Thursday evening at the clubrooms. Mrs. Marvin Breitman, past presidents chairman, conducted the meeting, held after a 6 p.m. dinner. A St. Patrick theme was carried out. Hostesses at the event were Mrs. Eva Arens, Mrs. Edward Lutz, Mrs. Fred Gehrke and Mrs. Rex Spencer.

The past presidents and other members of the Legion Auxiliary spent the day preparing envelopes for the Easter Seal for Crippled Children.

Darboy Legions Plans County Birthday Party

DARBOY — Plans were made for the Calumet County birthday party last week at the meeting of the Leo Van Roy Post 265, American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary. The party is scheduled for 7 p.m., Saturday at the Darboy Club. Mrs. Stanley Staudt, Appleton, will be speaker. In charge of decorations for the event are Mrs. Gordon Mader, Mrs. Joseph Wittman and Mrs. George Schwalbach.

Miss Trettin Named Head of Foresters

Miss Rosemary Trettin will serve as chief ranger and Mrs. Emmett Brown as vice-chief ranger, of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Mary Court 182. Election of officers was held at St. Mary School.

Mrs. Joseph H. Wydeven is recording secretary, Mrs. Edwin Massonette, financial secretary, and Mrs. Albert Will, treasurer. Mrs. Edward Horrig, Mrs. Raymond Brandl and Mrs. Roy Heegeman are trustees.

Mrs. William Morrow, was named senior conductor, Mrs. Edward Bartman, junior conductor, Mrs. George Koehler, inside sentinel, Mrs. John Heenan, outside sentinel, Mrs. Harry Tews, Girl Ranger director, Mrs. Floyd Sayton, assistant director, and Miss Loreta Griesbach, auditor.

Joint installation of officers will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 17 at St. Mary Hall, Kaukauna. Holy Name of Jesus, Kimberly, St. Johanna, Little Chute, St. Ann and Sacred Heart, Kaukauna, and St. Mary Courts will participate. Reservations may be made until April 10 with Mrs. Wydeven.

Foundation To Echo Eased Look

Fashions for spring have soft, supple lines—and so do the season's foundations. While girdles, brassieres, corselets tend to cover more of the figure, they do so lightly, in the prettiest possible colors and fabrics.

Brassieres shape gently, molding a high and rounded bustline, close to the body. Girdles are marvels of weightlessness and movement, with new waistband and, in pantie girdles, new leg constructions for greater freedom and ease. Corselets feature soft, natural cups, dipping backs, lacy trimmings.

Necklines Vary

With spring's "little boy" suits and casual dresses permitting no bosom emphasis, none is evident in the newest high fashion brassieres. Padding and foam contours are played down, with shaping achieved instead through subtle bias cuts and cloud-soft cup linings.

Just as couturiers are carving out necklines front and back, so are bra designers offering varied necklines in lacy foundations. Wide-set straps are frequently featured, as are back-plunge brassieres both with straps and without straps.

Built-up styles are no longer only matronly styles; they come in sheer fabrics for youthful figures. Nor are long line brassieres confined to "problem" figures; they're offered also for slim sizes to wear under those slivers of dresses that fit smooth through the midriff.

Waistlines Move

Waistlines move upward in girdles, and leg sections stretch longer in pantie girdles. Even some junior foundations fit from just under the bustline all the way to mid-thigh. They're controlling because they're designed to be comfortable because they're made of spandex; essential because outer fashions subtly define the figure.

Even the loose-and-lifted waistline demands undercover control. More revealing than concealing, its best foundation is a corselet that elongates the figure by improving its proportions. Pantie styling continues popular in one-piece foundations, and can be found in brief to long-legged versions.

Three Steps to Youthful Hands

A lovely, youthful hand complexion depends on three simple beauty steps: protection, lubrication and massage. When given those benefits, young hands are slow to age, and a hand already showing its years is markedly rejuvenated.

Protection takes the form of gloves and lotions, particularly least three times daily. To hurdle the third step, you need only master the proper massage techniques and then use them at least once weekly. Here's what you do:

Coat the hands with a "heavy" facial or massage cream.

Repeatedly pinch the sides of the fingertips of one hand between the thumb and forefinger of the other.

Using rotary motions, massage the knuckles of one hand with the thumb of the other.

Make a tight fist with the right hand, insert the left thumb and firmly squeeze it. Similarly treat the other fingers of the left hand. Then fist-massage the right-hand fingers.

With the palms, repeatedly stroke the backs of the hands from the fingertips to the wrists. Never, but never, stroke in the opposite direction.

Rub palms briskly together. Make a thorough, five-minute job of it, and the results will convince you that massage should be a regular part of your hand-care program.

St. Norbert College to Raise Tuition Fee to $795 Per Year

Room Rates to Go Up; Students Must Live at Home or on Campus Next Year

St. Norbert College has announced its tuition will be increased to $795 per year, effective next September.

This compares to the present yearly tuition of $680. In discussing reasons for the increase, the Very Rev. Dennis M. Burke, O. Praem., college president, cited rising costs, especially in lay faculty salaries. He noted that lay faculty salaries have gone up 113 per cent in the last five years, while tuition has gone up only 44 per cent in that same period.

In a letter informing parents of the tuition hike, Father Burke noted that "for the past two years, contrary to the pattern of most private colleges, we have not raised tuition or boarding costs." He noted that a recent study of tuition costs at 17 colleges of similar size and character showed that the average tuition at these colleges was $686 higher per year than the present tuition at St. Norbert.

Services Contributed
Sizable losses in operation would have existed, Father Burke said, had it not been for the contributed services of Norbertine priest faculty members and gifts received. These contributed services amounted to $236,878 last year, a figure computed by allocating the lay faculty pay scale to the priest faculty members.

The increase will be effective concurrent with the beginning of the three-term system at St. Norbert next September. Under this new arrangement, three terms will replace the present two-term system in a nine-month school year. The announced tuition is $265 per term which, on a yearly basis, amounts to $795. The present tuition at St. Norbert is $325 per semester.

A slight increase in room rates also was announced, but there is no change in yearly boarding fees. Yearly room rentals in present dormitory facilities are now $250. Under the new rates, room rentals will be $270 per year in the present facilities, and $300 per year in the two new residence halls, one for men and the other for women, currently under construction.

Boarding Charge Same

The yearly boarding charge of $450 remains unchanged. Thus, the total yearly room and board charges will be $720 for a student residing in present dormitory facilities, and $750 in the new residence halls, compared to the present yearly total of $700.

The new women's residence hall, first such facility for coeds at St. Norbert, is expected to be finished by September. The new men's residence hall, which will be the third male dormitory, will not be completed in time for use during the first term.

Overall, the yearly costs for a full-time student living in a dormitory will range between $1,500 and $1,560. This includes $795 tuition, $61 for a union-activities fee, and $720 to $750 room and board.

For students taking fewer than eight credit hours, tuition and the union-activities fee are somewhat lower.

Father Burke also announced

Waupaca Policemen Enrolled in School Conducted in Appleton

WAUPACA — Four members of the city police department and four county policemen are enrolled in the police school being conducted in the Appleton Police Department.

Attending from the city department are Sgt. John Penney, Paul Grunwald, Donald Fabricius and Wayne Schroeder.

County police attending are Sgt. Lyle McCully, New London; George Meating, New London; Clarence Draeger, Marion, and John Bonnell, Chain O'Lakes.

The classes are on accidents, crime scenes, evidence, interrogation, license laws, juveniles, public relations, laws of arrest and search and seizure. It is an 11-week series of instructions.

that, effective next September, all full and part-time students not living with their parents or legal guardian must room on campus and board in college dining facilities. The only exception will be students who are married or who have reached their 23rd birthday before registration.

This latter announcement also means that fraternity houses will no longer be permitted. St. Norbert has had two fraternity houses for the past two years near the campus, but this had been a temporary arrangement in anticipation of expanded residence hall facilities.

Green Bay Firm To Design CD Siren System

Committee Picks $43,980 Bid; First of Kind in Country

Graybar Electric Co., Green Bay, was authorized to design the country's first all-county Civil Defense siren warning system to be installed in Outagamie county.

The city-county Civil Defense committee awarded the contract on the $43,980 low bid submitted by Graybar. Four other firms bid for the contract. Eleven invitations were sent out.

Civil Defense Director Lee Penney said today the firm will prepare specifications for the system. These then will be submitted to the committee. After approval, the county will advertise for a firm to install the system.

Other Bids

Other bids submitted for the system were $44,440 by Westinghouse; $44,344 by General Electric; $44,440 by Federal Sign and Signal Co., Blue Island, Ill.; and $31,000 by the Biersach and Niedermeyer Co., Milwaukee.

The Biersach and Niedermeyer Co. purposely did not bid on all items, which included the "110 siren warning system" because that firm does not have such a system in stock. Committeemen estimated if Biersach and Niedermeyer had to purchase the equipment, the bid would be $46,805.

Not Itemized

Four of the five bids submitted were not itemized. Committeemen decided to accept them anyway. A representative of the Federal Sign and Signal Co., the firm which makes the only official siren warning system in use throughout the country, said the equipment was not listed by cost-per-item because it would allow potential competitors to copy prices.

Biersach and Niedermeyer officials said their firm is designing a "110 siren warning system" to compete with the Federal Sign and Signal Co., equipment, but as yet that system has not received authorization from Washington, D. C.

Westinghouse, General Electric and Graybar all sell siren warning systems manufactured by the Federal Sign and Signal Co. They did not submit itemized bids.

Teachers to Hear Judge, Columnist

Juvenile Expert, Pearson to speak at NWEA Convention

Drew Pearson, Washington Mercury-Go-Round columnist, and Judge Philip B. Gilliam of the Denver Juvenile Court will be featured speakers at the Northeastern Wisconsin Education Association annual convention April 5 in Sheboygan.

Pearson's topic will be "Behind the Scenes With John F. Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev."

Judge Gilliam is recognized as one of the nation's leading authorities on the prevention of juvenile delinquency. He has written extensively on the subject and traveled in various parts of the world at the request of the federal government as a specialist on juvenile and family problems. In 1962 he was appointed special adviser to President Kennedy's commission on juvenile delinquency. The subject of his speech at Sheboygan will be "The Surge to Delinquency."

Educators of the 6,000-member organization will hear both speakers in the morning sessions and will disperse at noon for luncheon and afternoon sectional meetings.

18-County Area

The April meeting will draw teachers and administration from an 18-county area from Marinette to Ozaucue and from Shawano to Lake Michigan, one of the largest and most densely populated districts in the state. Annual meetings are rotated among Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Sheboygan.

One of the highlights of the afternoon session will be the delegate assembly meeting at which the following slate of officers will be presented:

For president-elect, Gerald A. Eyer, administrator from Alouez; Harvey H. Humke, principal of Washington Junior High, Green Bay; Kenneth Krueger, fifth grade teacher at Elmore School, Green Bay; and John Sylvestor, mathematics teacher at West High School, Green Bay.

For vice - president, Henry Drechsler, principal of Nicolet School, Kaukauna; Leonard Ringstad, elementary supervisor, Ripon, and Miss Ruth E. Smith, librarian at West High School, Green Bay.

Other Candidates

For executive committee, District 1, Mrs. Sanford Hanson, English teacher, and Erwin W. Matke, principal and sixth grade teacher, both of Sturgeon Bay.

For executive committee, District 2, Miss Ruth E. Smith, librarian at West High School, Green Bay.

Village Police Issue Warning On Jaywalking

LITTLE CHUTE — Two youngsters hit by cars during the past week led to a warning about the dangers of jaywalking by Robert Nechodom, chief of police.

He urged parents to advise youngsters to use regular crosswalks when crossing streets. Paroled are especially urged to encourage teen-agers to cross streets sensibly as they are the biggest danger to themselves and set an example for the smaller children.

Crossing from mid-block, often from between parked cars, makes it extremely difficult for even a careful driver to avoid a mishap, indicated the chief.

2 Postal Employees Rewarded For Money-Saving Ideas

Two Appleton Post Office employees have received awards for suggestions which resulted in hundreds of dollars of savings and improved service.

Thomas Bootz received a $40 award for a suggestion to have forwarding addresses marked on boxes and are familiar with the money order section, received a $15 award for his suggestion of a change in the hours of his placement man. The change has eliminated errors through having an experienced person at a window at all times, and resulted in a saving of $132.17 the first year, said Sumnicht.

in the mailing division, according to postmaster Francis Sumnicht. Bootz also received $15 award two weeks ago for a suggestion to remodel a carrier's case for use in sorting out postage due mail, which has increased with the institution of the new postage rates.

Niels Larsen, who works in the money order section, received a $15 award for his suggestion of a change in the hours of his placement man. The change has eliminated errors through having an experienced person at a window at all times, and resulted in a saving of $132.17 the first year, said Sumnicht.

Lawrence Plans to Launch First Phase of Stadium

Work on 5,000-Seat Unit to Begin in Spring, Mayor Told

Lawrence College plans to launch the first phase construction of a new 5,000-seat stadium this spring.

Disclosure was made today in a letter from Marvin O. Wroldstad, college business manager, to Mayor Clarence Mitchell and the Appleton Common Council.

Several months ago Lawrence College received an undisclosed amount of money from an anonymous donor to construct an athletic bowl just east of Whiting Field.

Plans for the stadium are being prepared by an Appleton firm, and the new facility will be located in the ravine between E. South River and E. John Streets. "Engineering plans now are being developed and we hope to be able to begin some of the site work this spring," Wroldstad wrote city officials.

College officials have inquired as to the city's sewer construction plans and whether it is planned to extend the existing storm sewer at the north end of the ravine just west of John Street to the culvert carrying runoff water under E. River Street. The ravine presently serves as a run-off for water for a considerable area south of E. South River Street.

"Through the years, particularly since the start of the plans for the E. College Avenue bridge, there has been passing reference to the plan by the city to extend this storm sewer," Wroldstad wrote.

"If the city does, in fact, plan to install this sewer, we would like to request that it be considered as a project for this summer so that it can be coordinated with the construction of the stadium," Wroldstad added.

Wroldstad said college officials would be happy to meet with representatives of the city to discuss the proposed sewer extension. The matter will be considered within a week by the common council's street - sanitation committee.

City officials, who are charting a major sewer construction program for 1963, have to date made no specific mention of the inclusion of the E. South River Street extension.

No estimate of the cost of the stadium, which will be erected over a three-year period, has been released by college officials but the project is expected to exceed a quarter of a million dollars.

It will be a pre-cast concrete stadium with treated lumber seats. The plans include a north - south football field, flanked by stands on the east and west, and a building for public facilities, concessions and team rooms. Because Alexander Gymnasium is but a block away, no attempt will be made to duplicate its locker room setup, according to college officials.

Raise Seats

Plans for this spring call for installation of a drainage system to divert the ravine's seasonal creek, to be followed by bulldozing and filling. There will be a period allowed for setting and compaction before the actual stadium construction work begins.

Plans for the bowl were worked out with the assistance of Arthur C. Denney, college director of recreation, and Bernard E. Heslton, athletic director.

Once the stadium is erected, present Whiting Field facilities will be used for track and intramural athletics, as in the past. There is the possibility of incorporating a baseball diamond into the Whiting layout.

Current plans call for the floor of the ravine to be raised so the top stadium seats will be on a level with Whiting Field.

College officials plan to use the stadium for other events in addition to football games.

$140,000 Needed To Finance Major Storm Sewer Work

LITTLE CHUTE — Village board members voted to place a referendum question on the April ballot seeking citizen approval to at a $140,000 bond issue with which to finance a major storm sewer project.

If approved, the engineer would draw plans and specifications for installation of storm sewers in 30 different areas of the community thus providing the entire village with storm sewer facilities, according to Paul Kostka, village president.

The state has issued an order prohibiting letting surface water drain into sanitary sewers through the storm sewer project for the village; a necessity, noted Kostka. The village has been placing storm sewers in various critical areas over the past 10 years and more has been installed in that period than was installed in the entire history of the community said Kostka.

The $140,000 project would enable the community to complete the project. Plans call for the bond issue to be retired over 20 years with the understanding the village has the option to pay it sooner if possible. The 20-year plan would enable the village to keep a stable tax rate, said the president.

Several areas have petitioned for curb and gutter, but this can not be installed until storm sewer is provided, stated Kostka, and areas requesting curb and gutter will be given this improvement at a later date. Completion of the storm sewer project would enable village board members to set up a schedule for street improvements.

Vocational School Course Urged for Labor Officers

A course on collective bargaining, open to any union member in the Appleton area, will be offered at the Appleton Vocational and Adult School starting Thursday.

The class will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays for eight consecutive weeks. It is sponsored by the Appleton Vocational School in cooperation with the Appleton Federation of Labor Unions and the School for Workers of the University Extension Division.

The course will cover elements of collective bargaining, factors which affect the bargain, preparation for negotiations, bargaining strategy and techniques, practical work in a typical bargaining situation, and bargaining in relation to the community.

The course is recommended for officers and members of bargaining committees of local unions.

Harold Clark, president of the Appleton Federation of Labor Unions, recommends an early registration for the course. The fee is $4.

Police, Neighbors Search for Burglar; Suspect Apprehended

An Appleton detective and neighbors helped clear up a mysterious break-in Sunday night. When it was all over, no one was held in jail and there were no hard feelings toward anyone.

Police went to the home of W. G. Elmaker, 297 River Drive, after he reported his home had been damaged by someone who had broken in.

Architect Bills County for Time

Research for Expansion Plans Since 1960 Totals $3,834.60

Outagamie County is already in debt $3,834.60 for an addition to the Outagamie County courthouse which hasn't even been approved by the county board yet.

And, there is some doubt that the addition will ever be built.

County supervisors are trying to decide if the county should add to the present structure or if it can find more room in the 21-year-old building on S. Walnut Street.

Several proposals to add a four-floor addition to the north wing of the courthouse, to run parallel with W. Seventh Street have been defeated by the county board. The space problem has been discussed since 1960.

To Committee

Appleton architect, George Narovec submitted his bill for time spent since November, 1960 on proposed additions to the county's public property and insurance committee.

Narovec said "this is a tentative bill and does not have to be paid at this time. If the county does not proceed with the addition, we would expect to be paid for these services."

Narovec said in a letter that if the county does plan and approve an addition, the tentative bill will be absorbed in the final billing. The $3,834.60 represents costs expended by the architect's firm for conferences, studies, research and other work toward the expansion of the courthouse. The bill does not include overhead or any profit, Narovec said.

Seven representatives of the architect firm have spent 764 hours in working on the expansion, Narovec said.

$100-a-Plate Political Banquet Emphasizes Color, Personalities

What is a $100-a-plate political fund raising dinner?

It's a piece of roast beef, two boiled potatoes and a spoonful of beans. It's fruit cocktail, hard-to-cut lettuce and a square of ice cream colorfully marked GOP.

It's waiting in lines at the coat check. It's watching one side of each long row of tables served, while your side waits. One gentleman comments, "Maybe they're trying to bear out President Kennedy's campaign wait that 'half the world goes to bed hungry every night.'"

A fund raising dinner. It's trying to eat your meal while a vocalist blasts forth into your eardrums. It's trying to concentrate on the featured speaker, while the glare of TV camera lights fastens upon you. It's watching the leading impersonator of President Kennedy adding to his repertoire by studying another prospect. It's eavesdropping. It's trying to catch the reactions of the crowd.

"I was sure I wouldn't like him at all. Now I'm all for Rockefeller," said an elderly lady.

"Humpf," sniffed her husband.

Or, this from a YGOP'er, "I just shook Rocky's hand, and I shook Barry Goldwater's last year. Now I'm never going to wash it!"

"My," answered his cohort, "Will it ever be dirty?"

Speeches. . . . Music. . . . A political fund raising dinner. . . . It's speeches. . . . It's music. . . . It's colorful decorations. . . . It's meeting people from all over the country. It's a study of politicians at all levels of government, and it's a panoramic view of the people who helped put them there.

It's almost like any other public dinner, except here the spirit that prevails is a strong, almost tangible thing. As you listen to the speech, you feel the excitement rise. You feel a unity of purpose. A stranger to America would know without asking that this huge group of people has something very important in common, for you feel a devotion to a cause, to the basic principles of a political party that can't help but be truly inspiring.

This is a political fund raising dinner. This was Saturday's GOP dinner in Milwaukee.

BY SYLVIA PORTER

"The way to avoid a huge deficit is to have a large one."

This ironic comment was made off - the - cuff by a university professor at the American Bankers Association's symposium on economic growth in Washington a fortnight ago. Immediately, I looked around to see the reaction of the predominantly conservative group of 300 top industrialists, bankers, economists, etc. It ranged from a look of disgust on the face of the president of one of the world's biggest corporations to a sardonic grin on the face of the president of one of the world's leading banks. The titter which came when the professor paused and shrugged his shoulders be-

G. E. Sande, Ex-Mayor of Neenah, Dies

Former Civic Leader Was 1st Full-Time Chief

NEENAH — George E. Sande, 77, of 912 Hewitt St., Neenah's first full-time mayor and former business and civic leader, died Sunday night after an illness of two years.

He served as Neenah mayor from 1924-26, from 1928 to 1934 and was elected to a two-year term in 1936, becoming the city's first full-time mayor in April of 1937 when the voters approved the change from a part-time post. He was defeated for reelection in 1938.

He served on the cemetery commission from 1949 to 1958 as well as during his terms of office as mayor. He was a member of the police and fire commission from 1959 until his resignation early in 1963 because of health reasons.

Headed C of C

A former president of the Chamber of Commerce of Neenah - Menasha, he formerly operated Twin City Motors and later headed Twin City Cleaners. He was charter member of the Boys Brigade of Neenah - Menasha, a former deacon of the First Presbyterian Church and a past president of the Neenah Kiwanis Club.

Born March 5, 1886 in Neenah, he was a life resident of the city. He was a member of the Neenah - Menasha Elks lodge and of the Neenah Club. Also active in Masonic orders, he was a member of Elisha Kent Kane Lodge No. 61, F and AM; Neenah Chapter No. 88, R and AM; Twin City Chapter No. 39, Wisconsin Consistory of Knights Templar and of Tripoli Shrine at Milwaukee.

He and his wife observed their golden wedding anniversary June 18, 1938. Survivors are his widow, two daughters, a brother, a sister, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Presbyterian Chapel with Dr. John E. Bouquet officiating. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery. Friends may call at the Westgor Funeral Home after 4 p.m. Tuesday to 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. Masonic rites will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

Kindergarten Registration Dates Set

NEENAH—A letter has gone out to all parents of kindergarten children, who resided in the Neenah Joint School District prior to July 1, 1962, announcing kindergarten registration March 18 and 19. Dr. Donald Scott, superintendent of schools, requests that parents who have moved to this area since July 1, 1962, and who have a child five years of age now or who will be five years of age before Oct. 1, 1963, register on these two days.

"We anticipate large kindergarten enrollments next fall and will need to make plans for your child," the superintendent said. "This is the only week when registrations will be taken and we urge you to take care of your child's registration to assure a place for him or her in the kindergarten next year."

Registrations will be held in the schools from 11:15 to 11:45 a.m. and from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m. each day. Kindergarten teachers will take the registrations at each of the schools.

Parents are asked to bring the child's birth certificate on the day of registration. It is not necessary to bring the child.

At the time the child is registered parents will be given health examination and dental examination blanks for their personal doctor and dentist. These must be filled out before the child enters school in September. A kindergarten handbook will be furnished to give full information about the kindergarten program.

First Asiatic Flu Reported In Twin Cities

Suspect Others In Area Which Are Unreported

NEENAH — Authorities at Thea Clark Memorial Hospital this morning reported the first confirmed case of Asiatic influenza in the Twin Cities and indicated that several more unconfirmed cases are suspected.

The report coincided with several unconfirmed reports throughout Menasha of Asiatic flu.

City officials indicated some city employees are absent from work with illness believed to be influenza.

Hospital officials said several staff members have been absent from work with symptoms indicating influenza, although the cases were not confirmed as Asiatic flu.

The Visiting Nurse Association director Miss Aileen Rempel was not available for comment on suspected influenza cases. However, a secretary said nurses of the organization have attended several cases of flu recently in the Twin Cities.

Officials at Riverside Clinic in Menasha could not be reached for comment.

Medical officials contacted in Neenah - Menasha indicated a prevalence of influenza in the area but could not substantiate reports of Asiatic flu.

Hospital officials said there is no unusual increase in admissions for respiratory illnesses and absentees from area schools are apparently not unusual for this time of year, various sources reported.

Many Cases in East

Fear of Asiatic flu spread through the state and area after the disease reached epidemic proportions in the eastern part of the country.

The epidemic later spread to portions of the south and the midwest.

The Theda Clark case is the first reported in the Fox Valley area north of Oshkosh. Several cases have been reported in areas south of Oshkosh, especially in the City of Milwaukee.

Medical officials said confirmation of Asiatic flu is difficult because the cases are not usually reported until secondary disorders occur.

Pneumonia is one of the secondary effects which has proved fatal. The case is usually diagnosed as to the secondary effect rather than the initial Asiatic flu in certain cases, medical officials indicated.

Heart Fund Drive Nets $8,400 in Twin Cities

NEENAH — Contributions totaling $8,426.55 to the 1963 Heart Fund in Neenah - Menasha was announced today by Robert Campbell, treasurer of the Neenah - Menasha Heart Fund organization.

The gifts included approximately $2,400 in special gifts, $1,238 in business contributions, nearly $400 in memorials and $4,389 in Heart Sunday collections. The total is slightly under last year's final totals but additional contributions are expected to keep trickling in. The total of $8,426.55 has been forwarded to the Wisconsin Heart Association at Milwaukee.

Heading the drive in Neenah-Menasha this year was George Banta III, John Sensenbrenner Jr. had charge of the business and professional gifts while Robert DiRenzo had charge of special gifts.

Mrs. Jack Claghorn was chairman of the Heart Sunday collections. She expressed her appreciation to the volunteers who assisted with the annual house to house campaign. James Auer is publicity chairman.

More definite plans will be made by the junior class this week and the post prom meeting scheduled for parents has been changed from Tuesday to March 19.

Chamber Opposes Bill to Make Flag Pledge Mandatory

Patriotism cannot be legislated. With this in mind the legislative committee of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce has opposed a bill which would make the pledge of allegiance mandatory in schools.

The committee meets weekly, reviews pending bills in the state legislature, and makes recommendations.

The proposed legislation would require all public and private schools to offer the pledge at least one day a week in the first through the eighth grades.

Many teachers use and follow this practice on their own, according to the chamber group which feels there is no need for such a law.

"The statute books are cluttered with numerous provisions that have no particular purpose," the committee report said. "With the great host of pressing problems facing the legislature it seems odd that our elected officials would concern themselves with such trivia."

In other action, the committee opposed a bill which would lower the voting age from 21 to 18. Favored abolishing the position of county superintendent of schools when no part of a county remains in his jurisdiction.

Opposed legislation which would permit removal of front seat safety belts from 1963 and later model vehicles.

Beihoff Transferred

M. E. Jossi Named to Neenah Phone Post

NEENAH — Melvin E. Jossi has been named to the post of Neenah district commercial manager for the Wisconsin Telephone Co. He succeeds Warren Beihoff, who was transferred to Milwaukee as a district plant manager. The announcement was made by Wes Stehr, northern division commercial manager.

In his new position, Jossi will take over supervision of the company's business relations with its customers in the Neenah - Menasha district. The district includes Neenah - Menasha, Appleton, Kaukauna, New London, Stevens Point, Merrill, Waupaca, Hortonville, Little Chute and Wrightstown.

Jossi began his telephone career with the commercial department in 1946 as a pay-phone coin collector. After a variety of commercial assignments, Jossi was sent to Appleton as a communications engineer in the sales department.

In 1952 he became manager of the Menomonie exchange. Two years later he was promoted to Milwaukee as a sales manager, and in 1955 assumed a similar post in the Eau Claire district. Jossi was transferred to Superior as manager in 1956, where he served for four years. He was transferred to the company's Milwaukee accounting center in 1960 and the following year was promoted to employee information manager in the public relations department.

Jossi is married and has three children, Karen, 16; Jeanette, 10, and Frank, 3 and is planning to move here as soon as suitable housing can be arranged.

Raise $795 for Exchange Fund

Appleton Students End Most Successful Drive in History

The Appleton High School student body raised $795.65 for the American Field Service student exchange program during AFS Week in February. It was the most successful drive in history for the AFS committee. The money will be used to bring a foreign exchange student to Appleton High School for one school year.

Sales of slave passes and freedom passes totaled $53. The slave passes, sold for 10 cents, entitled girls to make a boy carry their books, while the boys could counteract them with freedom passes costing 15 cents.

The sale of carrot and celery sticks at 10 cents apiece, with permission for students to eat them during class, raised $94.58. The purchase of sweatshirt tickets which permitted students to wear sweatshirts to school on Friday raised $63.67.

Auction, Dance

An auction of articles at the dance concluding the week's activities and admission to the dance added $120.59 to the fund. The GIA contributed $15 from the coke sale at the dance.

A total of $448.81 was collected from the AFS jugs in the junior homerooms. The winning homeroom, with Mrs. Ellen Goolsbey as advisor, raised $57.25 and will be host to next year's foreign student. Second and third in the homeroom competition were Miss Marjorie William's, $53.55, and Herbert C. Timmerman, $49.15.

Public Hearing Set April 3 on Street Addition

NEENAH — A public hearing will be held in the Common Council chambers at 7:30 p.m. April 3 on the addition of a street east of the Green Briar Plat.

The street proposal was brought up at the March 6 council meeting.

The street, to be 60 feet in width, will run north from the proposed Marathon Street about 400 feet west of Commercial Street and then north 400 feet to a cul-de-sac 50 feet in diameter.

The property affected is located between the proposed Marathon Street and Peckham Street west of Commercial Street and east of the Green Briar Plat.

Milton Marasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Marasch, route 2, New London, received one of three Bacon Fellowships awards by the University of Wisconsin to continue graduate studies in solid state electronics. Marasch and his wife, the former Nancy Vanevenhoven, Kaukauna, both received their bachelor of science degrees, with honors, from the University of Wisconsin in January.

Safety Committee to Discuss Awards System

NEENAH — The city's safety committee will hold its March meeting Friday at 4 p.m., according to R. V. Hauser, city clerk. The meeting will be in the city hall.

The committee is comprised of city department heads and is organized to investigate and help the safety of city employees.

On the agenda is discussion of the city's award system, which presently gives awards to city departments completing 90 days of no lost time accidents and also for completing one year of no lost time accidents.

Lawrence Says

Anti-Castro Revolt Will Materialize

Officers in His Regime Will Lead Coup Against Him

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Many people who lately have cherished hopes for an early liberation of Cuba must have had a sinking feeling when they read a news dispatch from Santo Domingo the other day stating that some "Western diplomats" arriving from Havana saw little chance of a revolution against Castro. They reported, moreover, that the Soviets had effectively trained the Castro army to squelch any uprising.

But this is an unrealistic view. It is not borne out by the facts of history. For out of the hundred or more revolutions in Latin America in the last half century, rarely indeed has an uprising involved large military forces on both sides.

It is probably true there is today no armed force in Cuba secretly organized which could oust Castro. But a look at past revolutions, not only in this hemisphere but in other parts of the world, will remind us that the most successful "revolution" is the one that arises from within and is usually described by the French phrase "Coup d'Etat." The dictionary defines it as "a sudden decisive exercise of force whereby the existing government is subverted."

The word "revolution" usually suggests a war between two armies inside a country. But in modern times, even in a country of vast area, it is seldom possible to establish a military organization of any size without running the risk of defeat in the initial stages.

Waits to Strike

A "Coup d'Etat," however, is different. Inside the army, or the navy or the air force, there gradually develops revolutionary "underground." It stays loyal on the surface but waits for the propitious moment to strike.

The same "Western diplomats"—who were given as the source of the information that Soviet technicians had trained the Castro army and furnished them with the latest weapons—made the further point that secret police methods prevalent in Russia had been introduced in Cuba and made unlikely any subversion.

This theory, however, is negated by experience inside dictatorship countries in the past. When, for instance, had a better secret police than the Coast of Russia, or a more efficient army? And what army was considered more loyal to its monarch than the Czar's troops prior to the revolt in 1917? Yet it was in the middle of World War I that this same Czarist army went over suddenly and almost in its entirety to the revolutionary cause, and the Czar was put to death.

Internal revolutions without organized fighting have occurred in the Middle East and in the Far East and have overthrown governments. Latin America, however, furnishes the most dramatic example of how changes at the top of government are made in what are called "bloodless revolutions." In recent years in Brazil, in Argentina, in Venezuela, in Peru and in Santo Domingo there have been some instances of armed conflict, but these have usually been engineered by high-ranking officers of the army, navy or air force who organize successful plots to force out the incumbent rulers.

The last persons in the world to know anything about an incipient revolution are the resident diplomats of foreign countries. Nor is a coming revolt advertised in the newspapers or brought out in public places where tourists can see the preparations. Most revolutions come as a surprise.

Single Stroke

Potential revolutionists are numerous in any country where there is economic discontent or where the tyrannical hand of the ruler has wiped out friends and relatives. A general with personal magnetism and skillfulness can often take over an entire army by a single stroke, and the political head of the state will suddenly find himself helpless to resist.

When the anti-Castro revolution does materialize, it will not be initiated by armed bands swooping down on Havana but by officers in the Castro regime itself, most of whom will be patriotic enough to wish to return freedom to their people. The day a "Coup d'Etat" happens in Havana, the entire army will quickly go over to the revolution. For in that army will be thousands of Cubans with starving relatives and children threatened with illness as well as continued famine. Infiltration by underground methods, supported by leaders in exile, is a primary influence that helps to bring a successful revolution. The seeds of revolution are economic. Nikita Khrushchev, for instance, has been politically wise enough to recognize this fact as he strives to maintain a reasonable standard of living. He, too, however, cannot indefinitely spend money for armament that should go to improve the lot of 200,000,000 people. And when the whole country comes to be of one mind, the standing army naturally will respond to the concerted will of the nation.

Mrs. Douglas Will Speak at Oshkosh State

Former Actress, Congresswoman Served in U.N.

OSHKOSH — A former congresswoman and stage star who has been described as one of Washington's "10 most powerful women" by one writer and as "one of the 10 most beautiful women in the world" by another will speak at Oshkosh State College's Little Theater at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

She is Helen Gahagan Douglas, wife of movie and stage star Melvyn Douglas, and a five-term congresswoman. Her lecture is being sponsored by the Association of Woman Students at the college.

Mrs. Douglas became active in politics in the late 1930's and in 1941 was Democratic state chairman for California.

Topic of her talk is "Little Man! Big Machine! Small World! Big Question!" Her talk is open to the public and tickets may be secured at several Oshkosh stores and at the college today and Tuesday.

A reception for Mrs. Douglas at the Reeve Memorial Union is planned for immediately after the lecture.

Like her grandmother before her, Helen Gahagan Douglas has fought for women's rights and for public welfare. She has traveled extensively around the world and last year toured Central and South America, participating in President Kennedy's "Alliance for Progress" program. She also served one term in the United States delegation to the United Nations after her retirement from congress.

While on Broadway, she starred in numerous plays and operettas and also sang leading roles in operas in Europe. In 1931 she married Melvyn Douglas, like herself a renowned actor.

Green Bay Symphony

Lawrence Soprano Captivates Audience

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — A young woman whose body is chained to a wheelchair but whose spirit and voice soar with the hawk captured the hearts of a Green Bay Symphony Orchestra audience in West High Auditorium Sunday night.

Miss Sandra McKearin of Lawrence College, polio-stricken winner of the orchestra's annual Young Artists competition, was the star of what was, on nearly all counts, the finest concert the ensemble has played this season.

The symphony, building its program around the young soprano, offered a series of popular operatic works; the local premiere of Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" with Russ Widoe as narrator, and a ringing performance of Robert Russell Bennett's colorful "Symphonic Scenario" of music from "South Pacific."

Throughout, the orchestra played with spirit, a strong attack and clean tone.

Lyrical Numbers

A light, clear soprano, Miss McKearin presented three lyrical offerings. She sang with great sincerity and a secure sense of pitch although she obviously was tense and nervous.

Her interpretations lacked the variety of intonation and tonal coloring of a professional performance of "Mi Chiamano Mimmi" and the short Cavatina from "Figaro," but they were polished, smoothly flowing and rhythmically alive. She forced some of her high tones, indicative of the tension under which she was performing, but in the softer passages they were clear, sweet and soaring.

It was an impressive showing for a youngster undergoing one of the most exciting nights of her life, particularly since it marked the first time she had ever sung with a full orchestra. She fully deserved the heartfelt applause delighted audience heaped upon her.

If it hadn't been Sandra's night, top honors would have gone to Widoe for his cheerful narration of "Peter." He began a bit stiffly but quickly warmed to the story. The "Colonel" was in excellent form.

Orchestral Support

Both he and Miss McKearin enjoyed strong orchestral support. The ensemble played with poise, concentration and authority all through the evening.

From the opening bars of the "Magic Flute" overture it was apparent that the orchestra was ready and eager. The crisp lyricism and lift with which it swept through "Rosenkavalier" waiters set a mood that was maintained thereafter.

The clever and colorfully orchestrated "South Pacific" finale capped a highly effective night. This is an unusual piece of scoring, and the orchestra gave it a polished performance. The audience responded by demanding two equally lively encores.

Robert Hawks, 21, 173 W. 18th Ave., Oshkosh, pleaded guilty of drunken driving when arraigned before Winnebago County Judge James Sitter Monday and was fined $200 and costs or 90 days in the county jail.

He was arrested by Winnebago County police at 1:30 a.m. Saturday on State 21 in the Town of Omro. He tested .20 on the Town of Omro. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication. Winnebago County police noticed him driving erratically.

Honor Top Pike, Sturgeon Anglers At Festival Program in Chilton

Award Trophies, Cash Prizes for Big Fish; 200 Persons Turn Out for Event

STOCKBRIDGE—Some 200 persons turned out at the high school here Sunday to see some of the most successful sturgeon spearmen and pike fishermen operating on Lake Winnebago during the past season.

The trophy presentation and program climaxed a combined Sturgeon Festival and Pike Derby which began soon after the lake ice was safe for foot travel. The events are sponsored by the Stockbridge Community Chamber of Commerce.

Weekly winners in the pike derby receive $5 for the heaviest fish registered at predesignated stations before the season. The heaviest fish of the season earns the successful angler a trophy in addition to the prize money. This year the contest produced some huge pike topped by an eight-pound, four-ounce lunger landed by a local man, Art Zahringer, route 2, Hilbert.

A similar contest is staged during the three-week sturgeon season but the weekly prizes are hiked to $10 and two trophies go to the spearmen landing the heaviest fish during the entire season.

One is the Chamber of Commerce traveling trophy, which the successful spearer holds for a year or until unseated the following season, and the other is one which he keeps.

Prize Winners

Recipient of the trophies, along with a $10 prize, this year was Russell Henriksen, Berlin. His fish weighed 115 pounds and was one of the three heaviest taken on the lake during the entire season. The presentations were made by Emil Kufahl, Chamber of Commerce president.

Weekly winners were Reuben Schroeder, Milwaukee, 104-pound fish, and Gilbert Reindl, Watertown, 88 pounds.

Four sports films including several dealing with fishing on Lake Winnebago, were shown and lunch and refreshments were served to the entire gathering by the sponsoring organization.

The gym held many interesting displays of fishing and spearing gear, mounted fish and photo layouts of fishing.

New Teaching Course Used in Classes for Lutheran Instructors

Mrs. Henry Niederkorn is teaching a pre-service Sunday School teachers training course at First English Lutheran Church, using the new course "Learning To Teach," prepared by the Rev. Norman E. Wegmeyer of the Department of Parish Education of the American Lutheran Church last year.

Later in the program of instruction the series of films, "Methods of Teaching," produced by Moody Bible Institute will be used.

This class meets weekly on Tuesdays in the First English Lutheran educational building. Assisting Mrs. Niederkorn in this training course specially designed for those planning to teach in the Sunday School are Student Pastor William Hutfles and the Rev. Leonard A. Ziemer, pastor.

9 Lawrence Teachers To Attend Convention

Biennial 87-Year-Old MTNA Event to Open In Chicago Sunday; Maesch to Visit NASM

Lawrence Conservatory Director visit to Converse College March 15-16 when he will discuss curricular problems with the college faculty, and audition scholarship candidates for the school.

Other Lawrence faculty who will attend the MTNA meetings at various times include: James Ming, professor of music; Kenneth Byler, Clyde Duncan and Paul Hollinger, associate professors of music; John Koopman, Bernard Lemoine, Theodore Rehl and Mari Taniguchi, assistant professors of music.

Byler also will participate in meetings of the American String Teachers Association, held concurrently with the MTNA convention. He is a former publications chairman of the string group.

Hollinger is president of the Wisconsin Theory Section of the MTNA.

MTNA membership includes individual private music teachers throughout the nation, as well as those associated with colleges, universities and conservatories.

Before returning to Appleton, Maesch also will participate in National Association of Schools of Music (NASM) meetings in Chicago, and will visit Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., for advisory meetings.

Board Meeting

Maesch, immediate past national president of the MTNA, will be at the Chicago national convention through Tuesday. He is chairman of the convention nominating committee, and of the group's national office re-location project. He also will present the association's distinguished service awards.

On Thursday Maesch will attend an NASM executive board meeting and commission on curricula, also in Chicago. He was elected a vice-president of the association at a November meeting in Cincinnati.

His trip will conclude with the Words Often Misused: "Adapted to" implies natural suitability to a purpose, while "adapted for" implies a suitability brought about by design. Thus: "The eye adapts itself to darkness, and the house is adapted for occupancy."

Often Mispronounced: Status. Pronounce stay-tuss, and not "stait-us."

Often Misspelled: Channel; two "n's." Chenille; one "n" and two "l's."

Synonyms: Stamp (noun), genus, kind, description, make, mark, impression, imprint, print, brand, cast, mold, character, type.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: Compliance; act of yielding, as to a desire, demand, or proposal. "His coming is in compliance to my wishes."

'How West Was Won' Acclaimed Great Film

Represents Return to Movie Style That Once Made Hollywood Famous

BY BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A hit for months in London and Paris, "How the West Was Won," has finally made its Western premiere. It's a hit here, too.

The most frequent comment at the lavish Hollywood opening was: "What a pleasure to see a real movie again."

That can be written with a capital M. for "How the West Was Won" represents a return to the style of film making that Hollywood seemed almost to have forgotten. It fills the immense Cinerama screen with startling scenery, stirring action, attractive characters, and a theme befitting the hugeness of the production.

It will be difficult to return to tawdry little dramas with psychotic casts after this.

MGM and Cinerama made a wise gamble in entrusting their $14 million to directors Henry Hathaway, George Marshall and John Ford. All three were schooled in the silents, which held action and pictorial quality in high regard. All three know the value of pace and well-etched character.

Wisely Type Cast

Menominees May Ask to Set Aside Termination

Post-Crescent News Service

KESHENA — A petition to Congress to set aside termination of the Menominee Indian tribe will be circulated. It was decided at a meeting of the Committee for the Advancement of the Menominee People here Saturday afternoon.

Francis Leon, chairman of the group, said he is certain more than 1,000 signatures — from practically all of the eligible tribal members in Menominee County, the former reservation area — can be obtained.

Leon recalled that more than 600 signed a petition to postpone termination before the federal government ended supervision of the reservation and the 3,280 enrolled Menominees on April 30, 1961.

Leon said the Menominees were "guinea pigs" in a federal move to terminate all Indian tribes. "It hasn't worked and it isn't working for the Menominees. The fact is no other tribes have been terminated since. We shouldn't have to accept termination either," he emphasized.

The main speaker at the meeting at Community Hall here was Cyril C. Foster, a Milwaukee attorney and counsel for the group. About 35 attended.

"You maligned Menominees have been hostages of the politicians both in Washington and Wisconsin," Foster said. "You have been lied to and you have been bribed by the federal government to consent to termination."

The Dakotas Air Mystery Of Split Town

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11) — The Dakotas tells its standard tale of a leading town with hints of a somewhat improper father-daughter relationship. This gives the routine story a slightly adult feeling, which is what the producers intended. Everett Sloane is the father, a judge whose desire to clean up the town is almost insane in its fury. Joanna Moore is the daughter, a saloon girl.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — Monday Night at the Movies trots out a 1954 epic called "Prince Valiant." This adventure story of the Vikings, their wars and their women, stars James Mason, Janet Leigh, Robert Wagner, Debra Paget and Sterling Hayden. (Color)

7:30-8 (Channel 2) — The Lucy Show returns to its gimmick of the volunteer firewomen. This unit was modeled after a real outfit in California's Trabuco Canyon. The plot here has Lucy trying to raise money to pay for the uniforms.

8-8:30 (Channel 2) — The Danny Thomas Show has another of its filmed-in-Rome shows. The pleasant fun is helped by the authentic backgrounds. Danny and his wife (Marjorie Lord) try to get away from Danny's agent (Sheldon Leonard) to see the real Rome. They have to wear peasant clothes to do it, but they succeed.

8-9 (Channel 11) — Stoney Burke gets quite emotional in its story of a crippled girl and the horse who injured her. Diana Hyland, this season's busiest guest star, plays Eileen who seems to have adjusted to her wheel chair admirably. She just wants Stoney (Jack Lord) to capture the animal who threw her. This Stoney and his buddies do, but they don't particularly like what the girl plans to do with the horse.

9-9:30 (Channel 2) — After all these months, Paul (James Philbrook) finally gets around to a real marriage proposal on The Loretta Young Show. He is more or less pushed into it by Loretta and her family, after the worst-body neighbors assume the worst when he staggers into the house after his operation.

9-9:30 (Channel 4-5) — David Brinkley's Journal travels from one coast to the other to look at two interesting sights. In New York harbor is Ellis Island and in Los Angeles is Watts Towers. The Ellis Island sequence shows the island as it is today and traces its complicated history and its indefinite future. Watts Towers is a strange group of "artistic" structures built by an Italian immigrant in a poor section of Los Angeles. (Color)

9-10 (Channel 11) — Ben Casey is a slow-moving tale, which pays more attention to its uninteresting guest stars than to medical problems. We focus on a trio: a counsellor (Ray Walston) in the hospital with a broken leg; his foe, a chronic protestor (Luther Adler); and Adler's daughter (Sharon Farrell), a student nurse.

10-10:30 (Channel 4-5) — Tonight's guest stars are Sophie Tucker, Arlene De Marco and David Doyle. (Color)

Maureen O'Hara, a colleen from the Old Sod, will join host Andy Williams in a tuneless salute to the sons and daughters of St. Patrick during NBC-TV's "Andy Williams Show" color broadcast at 9 p.m. Thursday. Miss O'Hara was born in Dublin, where she started her acting career.

Plan 'Week of Reparation' Services in Appleton Church

Something different in the way of religious services has been scheduled for Sacred Heart Church, Appleton, according to the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emil J. Schmitt.

"A Week of Reparation in Honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus" will be conducted by the Jesuit Fathers of the Apostleship of Prayer, with headquarters in Minneapolis. They are the Rev. Eugene Dutkiewicz, S. J., and the Rev. Eugene Merz, S. J. Dates are today through Friday for women and March 17 through 22 for men.

The Week of Reparation, similar to a parish mission in format, is a special week during which the entire parish offers reparation in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

Meeting Subjects
The services, beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening, will consist of reparation ceremonies, brief talks on devotion to the Sacred Heart and the Morning Offering Way of Life by the Jesuit Fathers. There also will be brief talks at the morning Masses.

The Week of Reparation, now in its 15th year, has been held in hundreds of parishes throughout the United States.

The parish Christian Family movement couples are handling the publicity for the services as one means of contributing to the objective of the Movement, the re-Christianization of the family, the parish and the secular community.

The services are open to the public.

Both Priests

The two priests are both natives of Milwaukee and graduates of the Marquette University High School. They entered the Society of Jesus on Aug. 15, 1948, at Florissant, Mo.

Father Dutkiewicz spent two years teaching chemistry at Campion Jesuit High School in Prairie du Chien. He was ordained at St. Mary College, St. Mary, Kan., in 1961, and now is engaged in the Jesuit Tertianship at Decatur, Ill. The tertianship is a year spent in the intensive study of the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, and in the study of ascetical and pastoral theology.

Father Merz received his B. A. degree from St. Louis University in 1954 and his M. A. in the field of education from the same school in 1955. He then spent three years teaching English, speech and mathematics at St. Francis Indian Mission, St. Francis, S. Dak. He spent 1958 to 1962 in the study of theology at St. Mary College, St. Mary, Kan. During this time, he served as a Catholic chaplain at Haskell Indian School, Lawrence, Kan. He is now engaged in the Jesuit Tertianship at St. Joseph Hall, Decatur, Ill.

Parent's World If Boy Is in Rut, Change Your Tactics to Help Him

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Eve Jones: I'm about at the end of my rope with my 8-year-old son. He seems to have two personalities. At school or anywhere else outside of our home, he's a well-behaved, well-liked little boy.

But at home, if he's crossed in any way or asked to do anything at all, he flies off the handle and screams, runs into his room, slams the door, and says everyone is against him. If he's asked to put away his toys, he says to throw them out because he doesn't want them. And only after some difficulty will he finally straighten them up.

He has been like this since he was 2 years old. And he always has his thumb in his mouth at home. We've tried all kinds of punishment, from trying to reason with him, to making him stay in his room alone, and finally to spanking. But all to no avail.

MRS. L.E.S.

A Change Is Needed
Because things at home haven't changed for six years, your son hasn't changed, either. It's about time that rope you're at the end of gave out and you tried a more sensible approach.

Apparently your son has enough good sense and self-control to meet reasonable demands away from home. So all you and your husband need to do is make certain that your demands are equally reasonable. And because your son is reacting like a 2-year-old boy, your demands are reasonable for a 2-year-old.

Don't ask anything of him that isn't immediately concerned with self and his belongings. Thank him whenever he meets such responsibilities without any direct request from you. And don't let him assume other responsibilities until his tantrums are eliminated. Don't worry if his school work suffers temporarily.

When he makes foolish statements, like the request that you throw out his toys, tell him to stop being silly. With as much good humor as you can muster, tell him you won't let him hurt himself by giving

House to Consider Draft Extension Bill

Measure Would Extend Law Until 1967, Pave Way for Induction of 360,000 Men

BY WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP)—After two months of dilly-dallying, the 88th Congress buckles down this week to some serious floor action, starting today with consideration of the draft extension bill in the House.

Bills scheduled for votes in both the House and the Senate will give critics of President Kennedy's budget an opportunity to test their strength and start towards their goal of a cut of from $10 billion to $15 billion in appropriations. The Senate legislative menu is relatively thin. It serves up a vote Tuesday on an administration bill to coordinate federal and state outdoor recreation facilities.

Republicans have decided to use the bill for an initial scrap in their budget-cutting drive. The measure carries no actual appropriations but would authorize a program that would require some money later. Such new programs, Republicans claim, must be nipped in the bud before they start draining off deferral revenues.

House Fight

A bigger and tougher budget fight is due on the House floor Tuesday when that body considers a record $15.8 billion military authorization bill which will require some implementing funds later.

Anticipating a Republican attempt to cut the military bill, House leaders have served notice that there will be a roll-call vote on the measure.

"If they want to take a chance with national security, let them stand up and be counted," a Democratic leader commented privately.

The House Armed Services Committee has boosted the military bill by about $497 million over the amount requested.

The biggest share of the increase, $363.7 million, is to step up the controversial RSTO reconnaissance strike plane program. Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., said the committee wants to make sure the administration doesn't put too much reliance on missiles for strategic defense at the expense of the manned bomber.

Nuclear Subs

The other committee addition is for construction of two more nuclear attack submarines. The Pentagon wanted six built under the fiscal 1964 program, and the Navy sought construction of eight. The committee went along with the Navy, and said eight new attack subs a year would be a minimum program to make sure the United States doesn't lose its lead over the Soviet Union in submarine warfare capabilities.

The draft bill up for House action today would keep the draft in effect until July 1, 1967, paving the way for induction of an estimated 360,000 men. The Army figures it will have to draft about 90,000 men during each of the next four fiscal years.

Lawmaker Triples Wife's Salary After Marriage

Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON — It pays a girl to be married to Rep. T. Ashton Thompson (D-La.).

This was borne out by a study of the payroll records in the House Disbursing Office.

The study was prompted by a tip sent in by a reader of the Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. Willa Thompson, the 47-year-old congressman's first wife, drew $813.59 a month as an employee in his Washington office. She went off the payroll when their marriage broke up three years ago.

Mrs. Leatrice Thompson, the congressman's second wife, also worked for him for a number of years before their marriage. She had a job in his field office in Ville Platte, La. Her top salary before she married the boss was $337.28 a month. Her salary now as an employee in the Washington office is $995.30 a month.

Why the big jump in pay? Here is the congressman's explanation: "Whenever a person goes on to a more responsible job, she naturally gets more money."

Pennsylvania Man Marks 100th Birthday

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Archibald Boyd celebrated his 100th birthday Sunday with messages of best wishes from President Kennedy, Gov. William W. Scranton, and Mayor James H. J. Tate.

Boyd, erect and vigorous, lives at a nursing home. He has outlived his wife, two sons and a daughter. He says he has no formula for longevity. He approves of 50 mile hikes "but not in this kind of weather."

Solon Seeks To Lower Draft Age

Democrat Says Move Would Help Cut Unemployment

Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON — An Illinois Congressman today sought to cut the maximum draft age from 26 to 22, effective July 1.

Rep. Roman Pucinski (D-Ill.) said the move would lessen unemployment "by eliminating the uncertainty that most boys now face until they are 26—an uncertainty that makes many employers shy away from them."

Pucinski planned to submit the age cut as an amendment to the bill renewing the Selective Service Act, which was scheduled for debate and passage in the House today.

Pucinski conceded in advance, however, that his prospects for success are dim.

Cool to Idea

The bill in its present form is backed by Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ala.), powerful Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. Vinson is cool to the idea of lowering the draft age.

Pucinski, in a House speech Thursday, said the main reason given by the Department of Defense for continuation of the draft is to keep enlistments high. Many young men facing eventual induction sign up voluntarily so they can get a better choice of military service and assignment.

Pucinski said however, that "virtually all of the enlistees are in the 18-21 age group that would still face the draft under my amendment—so enlistments would not be affected," he predicted.

Old Age Lin it

He also stressed that his amendment would provide that the President would be empowered "to order a return to the old age limit any time a national emergency or a drop in enlistments required it."

In his speech Thursday, Pucinski contended it is "cruel and illogical to subject more than 10,000,000 Americans to the shadow of the draft for 7 years" when only an "infinitesimal fraction" of them are actually taken.

He pointed out that only 38,000 men will be drafted this fiscal year (ending in June), since half this year's target total of 76,000 will be made up of volunteers.

Pucinski noted there are 800,000 draft-age men now jobless—and that that age group makes up the biggest single group of unemployed in the country.

Leftist Convinced U. S. Will Invade Cuba

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Francisco Juliao, leftist peasant leader of Brazil's destitute northeast, declared here Sunday: "If the United States invades Cuba, we will sabotage North American properties in Brazil and trust other Latin American countries will do likewise."

He arrived here Saturday on his way home from a visit to Cuba. "We are convinced in Brazil, as well as in Cuba, that invasion of Cuba by North America is imminent," Juliao told newsmen.

Mountbatten Unhurt as His Auto Sideswiped

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — An automobile careening downhill out of control Sunday sideswiped a car carrying Earl Mountbatten, chief of Britain's National Defense Council. The runaway auto then plowed into a police patrol car, overturning it.

Mountbatten, who is on a Latin American tour, was unhurt. The driver of the runaway auto and two policemen in the car guarding the earl were injured.

Donna Shireek, Ambridge, Pa., is led up a ladder to safety from a cave near Centre Hall, Pa., where she, along with three male Bucknell University students, were trapped in a cave they were exploring when melting snow waters trapped them. Two students quickly escaped while Donna and another student were rescued after five hours. Following Donna up the ladder is Carl Keil of Muncie, Pa., one of the students who escaped at the beginning and returned to hunt for the other two.

Can't Appear Too Eager

Gov. Rockefeller Busying Himself Selling Unity to Republican Party

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller appears to be encountering the customary difficulties of politicians who seek a presidential nomination but don't say so openly.

Modern practicalities demand that any man who runs for a nomination get started early. But protocol dictates that he mustn't appear so over-eager for the prize that he lets the public in on the secret a year or more before it becomes available.

These circumstances have put the New York governor in the position of acting like a campaigner while saying it is too early for the party to be thinking about its nominee.

Rockefeller is publicly busying himself at this point selling party unity. This is a commodity that doesn't appear to be in oversupply so far as it concerns GOP conservatives and the governor's nomination ambitions.

In pursuit of this endeavor, Rockefeller happened to find a convenient gap in his schedule of state duties which permitted him to drop in on a weekend Republican rally in Milwaukee.

Wisconsin presents one of the problems which plague a non-candidate. At least three factions of Republicans would like to climb into the local driver's seat of the Rockefeller bandwagon once it gets going.

There is every evidence the governor might be willing to sacrifice a little of this kind of enthusiasm for a little more unity. Wisconsin is the scene of presidential primaries that have been crucial in the past and may be in the future. Illinois, which also has a primary, already has had a Rockefeller visit.

In this wooing of what might be described as the heartland of Republican conservatism, Rockefeller is not overlooking Kansas and Nebraska. He will be in the states to make speeches April 5 and 6.

Meanwhile the New York governor has been doing what he can to contribute to party unity with statements that most Republicans find palatable.

Teed Off in N.Y.
He teed off in a New York statement Saturday on Kennedy's economic program he called for a cut in maximum corporation income tax rate to 47 per cent and an across-the-board $7.5 billion slash in individual rates. He advocated abandonment of revenue law changes the President has proposed.

Parents Seek Clue To Suicide of Son

MISSION, Kan., (AP) — When David Hopper came home from school he had a question: What are we having for supper?

"Well, honey, I haven't thought much about it," said Mrs. Margaret Hopper. "How would you like sausage and waffles?"

"Fine mom," Hopper David replied.

"Out of the room he went," said Mrs. Hopper. "That was the last time I saw him."

That was the last time anyone saw 16-year-old David alive. He went to the storm shelter behind his comfortable home in this Kansas City suburb last Thursday. There he got his father's .22 pistol and shot himself in the head.

Note Said

Near David's body police found a note. It said: "This has been bothering me for some time and I have been planning it for two weeks. I don't know why it has bothered me and I don't understand it myself."

What had been bothering David? That's the question which hunts his parents, Allen and Margaret Hopper.

In the hope that their experience will provide guidance for other parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hopper talked to a Kansas City Star reporter about their family life, about David and their other children, Joe, 14, and Jill, 13.

"David was different, maybe," said Hopper. "He was sensitive. He hurt quickly and was touched deeply. He was concerned for the feelings of others."

Swimming Team

David was an average student. He was a member of the High School swimming team. He had a part-time job in a hardware store. His paycheck went to his parents and they paid him an allowance.

He had no serious problems, so far as his parents know, although he was being punished for staying too long at a party.

"I'm a strict disciplinarian," said Hopper, 38-year-old designer for a pipeline company. "When David came home, I told him, 'This is going to cause you to be grounded for two weeks. Do you understand that?' He replied 'yes' and that was all there was to it."

Hopper added that he still believes in discipline, and continued: "Like money. I know that some of David's friends went around with $5 to $10 in their pockets all the time. But I didn't think that was right."

Where Are We Going?

The writer notes with interest Mr. Gruetzmacher's recent article in the People's Forum and thinks this expresses again the trend in where we are going.

He states (and is absolutely right) that when the County Highway Departments started out their function was one of maintenance. However, since that time they have branched off into all other phases of construction. First culverts and bridges from that to grading and now into hot mix asphalt paving.

The writer quotes from a recent speech made by Mr. Harvey Grasse, Chairman of our State Highway Commission at a division meeting of division #3 held at New Holstein on May 24th. He states, the primary function of county highway depts. is that of a service unit, not a construction company. Mr. Grasse further stated that some departments have a tendency to over equip and over staff for construction. Further, Mr. Grasse stated that consideration should be given to possible interference with private industry before any Federal Aid Secondary construction job be assigned to a County Highway Department. (End of Quote)

The Federal law states that Federal Aid Secondary jobs shall be let by contract unless it is in the public interest to negotiate with County Highway Departments on a day labor basis. Where shall this public interest be decided, in Green Bay, Madison or by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads where the funds come from?

It is significant at that as these County Highway Depts. continue to expand that their deficits have increased. The writer takes Brown County with $527,916.16 of revenue and a deficit of $111,980.79. Manitowish County with revenues of $454,989.15 and a deficit of $115,513.86. Winnebago County with revenue of $276,717.28 and a deficit of $24,127.82. And all without any personal property tax, gasoline, vehicle license, use tax or sales tax! It sure would be pretty stupid to mention income taxes on deficits, wouldn't it?

The idea of the Outagamie County Highway Dept. not being approached on furnishing hot mix asphalt is a lot of hog wash. The writer approached the committee on several occasions and all he got was some lessons on how to play sheephead. It is customary and also a matter of law that any governmental unit wanting prices shall advertise for bids together with specifications, delivery, etc. Has this ever been done on grading or hot mix? Winnebago County does so why not Outagamie?

The writer wishes to point out that there are over forty privately owned taxpaying asphalt plants together with over two hundred bridge building, grading and crushing contractors State qualified in the State of Wisconsin. So the writer would challenge the Highway Dept. to advertise for bids according to the law and see what happens!

The County Highway Depts. and also the State Highway Dept. when driven in a hole, forever bring up the snow removal conversation. How many trucks, tractors or any other loading equipment are owned by Taxpaying contractors. Has anyone ever thought of asking for bids on doing this work? Badger Highways Co. plows snow for many of the mills in the valley on a day and night basis but you do not see them joy riding on the highways when there isn't any snow. We have all seen this with county owned equipment!

Mr. Gruetzmacher states that the law prohibits the county from engaging in private work but did it stop Waupesa, Door, Ozaukee and others from breaking this law? I should say not!

The writer believes that Mr. Gruetzmacher is a farmer and apparently put quite a lot of time and effort in putting together his published article. However we wish he would look around him and take a look at who helps him pay his taxes. Perhaps it is the cheese factory, a garage, grocery, lumber dealer, hardware store, bowling alley or perhaps the tavern on the corner. Would you like to take these taxpaying concerns, large or small, and have them operated by people or crews who were hired by the township, county, state or federal government and operated tax free?

Again we say let's take a look at Where we are going while we still have a free press and the right to stand up in our town meetings and express ourselves!

Cash Register Rings Much More with Color (Reprinted from Editor & Publisher . . . Jan. 5, 1963)

A second survey of the effectiveness of run-of-paper color advertising versus black-and-white has just been completed by the Long Beach (Calif.) Independent and Press-Telegram. A former study was published in 1959.

These surveys are an actual sales test measured at the cash register on the items advertised. In the first study, color advertisements outpulled black-and-white ones from a low of 45.6% to a high of 83.3%, except in one instance where a black-and-white ad outpulled color by 6.7%. The average was 50.6% in favor of color.

Sales results for color advertisements in the second study were even more favorable with color outpulling black-and-white from 5.2% to 135.1% for an average of 79.1%.

The conclusions in both tests seem to indicate that an advertisement with a single color added, on an average, rings the cash register from one third more times to almost twice as often as the same ad in black-and-white.

Stores Selected

Six stores were selected again this year for the test: two variety stores, two furniture stores and two department stores. The pairs of stores were as nearly identical as possible in location, size, annual volume, type of merchandise, newspaper advertising space used, methods of doing business, and public acceptance.

An item that was acceptable to the two store managers was chosen. They agreed to stock the items and to sell them at the same price. The two managers agreed to keep the items out of their windows, but to give them "in-store" display.

Six advertisements were published as "split-runs," half of the total Independent and Press-Telegram circulation in black-and-white and half in one color and black, each for a different store. Every other advertisement coming off the press was in color. Alternating advertisements were printed in black only. By this method, even and fair distribution of the advertisements by area and home delivery and street sales was assured.

Dominant Pages

All the advertisements were page-dominant (approximately 72 column inches). Art, copy and layout treatment for each individual ad were the same. In the first test, the advertisements were prepared in black and then parts were separated for color. By this method, color may not have had full opportunity to show its true value as is somewhat indicated by a comparison of returns between the two studies.

In this second test, the advertisements were specifically prepared for color and the color was eliminated for the black-and-white runs. The ads were planned to give strong impressions in both black-and-white and color.

Prices of items were the same in both the black-and-white and color advertisements. The article advertised was exactly the same as was the page number and position on the newspaper page. The store which ran the color advertisement one week ran a black-and-white one the next on a different item. Sales for each advertisement were recorded for a two-day period after the advertisement was published.

Everything Was Equal EXCEPT . . .

Six Long Beach, California stores corresponding in size, merchandise, service, volume and location, tested a series of newspaper advertisements of — — the same size receiving the same distribution

out pulled the black-and-white
up to . . .

135.1%

COLOR averaged 79.1%
more selling power!

THE RESULTS WERE COLOR POSITIVE!

Conclusions indicated that an advertisement with a single color added, on an average, RINGS THE CASH REGISTER FROM ONE THIRD MORE TIMES TO ALMOST TWICE AS OFTEN as the same ad in black-and-white.

BLACK-AND-WHITE IS GOOD . . . COLOR IS BETTER!

Cubans Step Up Subversive Efforts, Rep. Laird Asserts

Training of Latin Americans Has Been Tripled, He Reports

BY RICHARD P. POWERS — WASHINGTON (AP) — Communists in Cuba in the last few months have tripled their training of Latin American nationals for subversive activities, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R - Wis., said today.

Many Cubans who were taken to the Soviet Union, Laird said, are now returning to Cuba to serve as instructors for Central and South American nationals in guerrilla warfare and subversion. Laird is a member of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee which gets detailed briefings from top Defense Department and armed services officials in closed sessions.

The real danger in Cuba, Laird said, is not whether missiles or Russian troops are there, "but the capability Russia has now to establish submarine bases anywhere on the island and the keys surrounding Cuba, and use of the base to carry on subversive activities in Latin America."

Laird said the subversive training in Cuba is not a direct threat to the United States. But it is an indirect threat, he said, because of the capability it gives the Soviets to overthrow governments in Central and South America.

Laird also contended that the administration has given out inaccurate information on Cuban developments, adding: "The administration has got to learn that sometimes it is better to have no comment regarding activities of communism in this hemisphere, rather than give out false information."

Data From McCona

For example, Laird said, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara in his two-hour briefing to the country said there was no evidence of export of Communist subversion from Cuba to Central and South America.

But, Laird said, John A. McCona, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, gave detailed data 10 days after McNamara's appearance on the number of trained Latin American guerrillas, running into the hundreds, who have left Cuba for other countries.

In another instance, Laird said, top state and defense department officials testified there was no evidence of missiles in Cuba prior to last Oct. 10.

But, Laird said, recent testimony by McNamara and McCona show that they had "solid evidence" as early as mid-September that missiles were in Cuba. Laird said this evidence was not from Cuban refugees but from other reliable sources.

Ambush Leader Executed for Plot To Kill De Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — Lt. Col. Jean-Marie Bastien-Thiry was executed today for leading the ambush attempt to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle.

Charles de Gaulle had granted clemency to two others sentenced to death with Bastien-Thiry. They were Lt. Alain Debourenne and the Toco-Bastien-Thiry, 36, reportedly the deputy leader of the plot, and Jacques Prevost, 31, a veteran of the Indochina war and Dien Bien Phu.

Presumably their sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. Bastien-Thiry, 35, confessed during his 26-day trial that he master-minded the assassination attempt last Aug. 22. He was sentenced to death last week by a military tribunal. De Gaulle denied him presidential clemency.

He was the first man executed for trying to kill De Gaulle. State roads this morning were reported in generally good winter driving condition.

Kennedy Says Nation Falls Behind in Providing Jobs

Employment Not Keeping Pace With Production; Renews Tax Cut Pleas

BY NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy reported to Congress today that unemployment "out No. 1 economic problem," is wasting lives and unrealized production that could materially increase the nation's living standards.

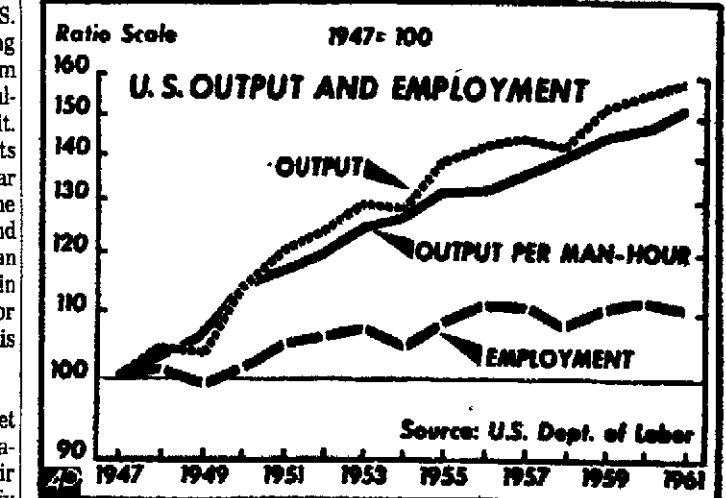

The President said the economy is growing steadily more efficient but is progressively failing to supply the jobs to occupy a fast-expanding population and work force.

"We cannot accept this situation," Kennedy said in again urging...

year, or as Kennedy said, at a rate "not nearly enough to keep up."

Billion Work Days Lost
In 1962 alone, time lost — because of average 4 million unemployment and because some 2.7 million workers wanted full-time employment but found only part-time work — amounted to a waste of 1 billion potential work days. Kennedy said this was equivalent to shutting down all production in the nation for over three weeks.

—For each of the past five years the rate of unemployment

This Chart Was Part of President Kennedy's manpower report today. It shows how output has soared in 15 years with rise in output per man hour largely responsible for the gain. Employment has risen only 10 per cent in the period compared with 60 per cent for output. (AP Wirephoto) on his tax cut proposals and other programs advanced to spur economic growth and job expansion.

"It is within our power to take these steps," he said, "to consummate an achievement of such magnitude as to mark this decade for all time in the history of human progress."

Report on Manpower

Kennedy submitted his message to Congress along with a comprehensive Labor Department inventory of manpower resources and their utilization since World War II and forecasts of what is likely to happen in the future.

At the rate the economy is going, he said, unemployment will rise by 1967 to 5.5 million, or 7 per cent of the work force.

Among other things, the President reported: "In the 15-year period 1947-62, the labor force increased 21 per cent but employment increased only 17 per cent, with consequently rising unemployment."

Nonfarm employment rose an average 900,000 a year in the 1947-57 decade, but since then has been rising less than 500,000 a has been 5.5 per cent or more. Last month it turned up to 6.1 per cent of the work force.

Heavy Cost to Nation
"Our continued underuse of human and physical (plant) capacity," Kennedy said.

Lake Geneva Woman Facing Charge of Attempted Bribery

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Louise Hill, 52, of Lake Geneva, Wis., was charged with attempted bribery Sunday after she allegedly offered a diamond ring to a policeman investigating an accident in which her car was involved.

Police said that Mrs. Hill described the ring as a five-carat diamond worth $6,000, but authorities valued it at $100 in their police inventory.

Sgt. LeRoy Anderson said she took the ring from her finger and slipped it into his pocket as he was investigating the traffic accident. Anderson said Mrs. Hill's auto struck a pedestrian, Mrs. Adele Ilder, 67, of Chicago, who was later treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Hill also was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol, striking a pedestrian in the cross walk and driving in the wrong lane.

Terrorists Sought By West Berlin Police

BERLIN (AP) — Detectives searched West Berlin today for members of a neo-Nazi terrorist group discovered after an explosion killed a West Berlin student who apparently was trying to manufacture a bomb.

Detectives were said to have questioned a Roman Catholic priest suspected of extreme right-wing activity.

6 Perish When Train Hits Car in Monroe County

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A woman and five young people were killed late Sunday when their automobile was struck by a fast moving train in Monroe County.

The six deaths and six other fatalities over the weekend brought about the worst weekend highway traffic toll of the year. The previous weekend toll was a week ago when 11 died.

The 1963 traffic death count now is 114, five more than on this date a year ago.

Thomas Heimerl, 24, of Rubicon was killed early today when his car went out of control on State Highway 83 south of Hartford. He was alone in the car. Washington County authorities said the auto apparently was traveling at high speed.

Killed Sunday at the small north-central Wisconsin community of Tunnel City when their car was struck by a North Western "400" passenger train were Mrs. Helena Sherwood, 35, of Warren, her three children and her two nieces. The Sherwood children were David, 13, Sharon 11, and Patricia 9. The nieces were Carol Woods, 16, of Warren and Edith Paddock, 16, Wisconsin Rapids.

How Accident Occurred

Monroe County authorities said that the car driven by Mrs. Sherwood waited at one crossing until a Milwaukee Road passenger train, southbound had passed. The car then pulled slowly onto parallel tracks of the North Western Railway and into the path of the "400," northbound from Chicago to Mankato, Minn.

Mrs. Allen Lind, who lives near the crossing, saw the crash from a window of her home. "I heard the train," she said.

Tomahawk Restaurant Destroyed by Fire

TOMAHAWK (AP) — Damage was estimated at $150,000 in a fire that destroyed Jim's Logging Camp, a well-known supper club early Sunday.

James E. Smith, the owner who estimated the loss, said he smelled smoke and heard a crackling sound in the kitchen area about 4:45 a.m. Smith had apartment in the rear of the one-story log-covered building.

Firemen from Tomahawk and Merrill succeeded in saving an eight-unit motel built on the south wing of the club. No injuries were reported.

The club was rebuilt after the original Logging Camp on the same site was destroyed in a fire Feb. 24, 1947.

Ex-Convicts Force Officers Into Desert Where Partner Is Slain

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — plain clothes, had stopped a suspect's car about 10 p.m. Saturday in downtown Hollywood. Its rear license plate light was off and the car matched the description of one used in several hold-ups.

Two suspects, later identified as Gregory Ulas Powell, 29, and Jimmy Lee Smith, jumped out of the car. One pointed a .32-caliber revolver at Campbell.

"I could have shot the other suspect," said Hettinger, "but Campbell would have been shot."

Took Guns
The men took the officers' guns and forced them into their old car. With Campbell driving and Hettinger in the back seat, the suspects made the officers take them northward on heavily traveled U.S. 99, the main inland north-south route.

"They knew where they wanted to go," said Hettinger. Near Mettler Station, 25 miles south of Bakersfield, the plainclothesmen were ordered out into a field.

Powell asked Campbell, "have you ever heard of the little Lindbergh law?" When Campbell said "yes," Powell shot him. The kidnappers apparently referred to a California law which provides the death penalty for kidnapping that involves harm to the victim.

Hettinger Runs
That's when Hettinger made his move. At 1:30 yesterday morning, California highway patrol officers spotted a stolen car 16 miles south of Bakersfield on U. S. 99. They pulled it over.

Powell was alone in it. "He didn't try to resist," said the officers. "He seemed pretty calm until we noticed a gun and a flashlight that said 'Hettinger-Lapd.' Then he started shaking all over."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will make a public address Wednesday — topic not announced — but will not hold another news conference until March 21, the White House said today.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy will address the 19th annual Washington conference of the Advertising Council at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Syria Asked to Unify Command

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's new revolutionary regime was urged today to join four other pro-Nasser Arab states in a joint military command as a step toward uniting the Arab world from the Atlantic Ocean to the Persian Gulf.

The unity proposal was made by Iraqi Deputy Premier Ali Sa'leh El Saadi, who came to Damascus to help Syria celebrate Friday's bloodless coup. He proposed that Syria, Iraq, the United Arab Republic, Algeria and Yemen form the unified command.

El Saadi said the five nations' armies should be empowered to cross the borders of any of the five states "in the event of being threatened by outside aggression." They also could intervene if member governments were menaced by "an internal plot backed by imperialism to topple the progressive government."

Counterpart Funds Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., acquired two good-looking female assistants to the Lido night club in Paris last summer and paid his way with U.S.-owned francs. The night on the town provoked outcries back home.

Powell had a quick defense. He quoted Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon as saying if Powell and other congressmen didn't use these francs, the U.S. government would have to burn them.

Prudence Needed
"This is money going right down the drain," Powell said. Dillon said he had no recollection of making the remarks and added that he felt these funds "require the same prudent management and careful handling as any other moneys of the government."

Uncle Sam Has Huge Surpluses in Some Places but Must Buy in Others

BY STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., acquired two good-looking female assistants to the Lido night club in Paris last summer and paid his way with U.S.-owned francs. The night on the town provoked outcries back home.

Powell had a quick defense. He quoted Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon as saying if Powell and other congressmen didn't use these francs, the U.S. government would have to burn them.

Prudence Needed
"This is money going right down the drain," Powell said. Dillon said he had no recollection of making the remarks and added that he felt these funds "require the same prudent management and careful handling as any other moneys of the government."

In fact, other administration officials say that most times that a congressman uses funds like these, he forces the United States to buy more foreign currencies with American dollars.

Powell's night on the town, the outcry, his defense, and the denial by Dillon reflect one of the most complex and massive problems in American international finance.

Throughout the world, the United States owns more than $3.3 million worth of rupees, pounds, dinars, zlotys, kyats and other foreign money. But the United States can't or won't use most of it now.

In Poland, for example, U.S.-owned Polish zlotys total more than $100 million. But every year the United States dips into its own gold to pay $14 million in U.S. Social Security and other benefits to residents of Poland.

In most cases, legal limitations, diplomacy, and economics prevent the United States from using all this foreign money that accumulates as a result of U.S. foreign aid.

Under U.S. laws, in fact, more than half the money, while American owned, must be used for the benefit of other countries. And, according to U.S. officials, the United States would rock and perhaps wreck the economies of other countries if it ever spent the rest of the money in one swoop.

"We would cause inflation," said Bartlett Harvey, chief of the Economic Progress Division of the Agency for International Development. "We would hurt the very countries we are trying to help. We would end up spending more American dollars to help them fight the inflation."

"Better Than Nothing"

Even such a critic of foreign aid as Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., agrees that little more use can be made of this huge pot of U.S.-owned money.

"No improvement can be made in this part of the program," Passman said. "It's like having a whole barrel of post-dated checks. It's better than having nothing."

"The wrong," he continued, "is in making the contracts that acquired this money in the first place. We could be a little less

$140,000 Needed To Finance Major Storm Sewer Work

LITTLE CHUTE — Village board members voted to place a referendum question on the April ballot seeking citizen approval to a $140,000 bond issue with which to finance a major storm sewer project.

If approved, the engineer would draw plans and specifications for installation of storm sewers in 20 different areas of the community thus providing the entire village with storm sewer facilities, according to Paul Kostka, village president.

The state has issued an order prohibiting letting surface water drain into sanitary sewers thru the storm sewer project for the village is a necessity, noted Kostka. The village has been placing storm sewers in various critical areas over the past 10 years and more has been installed in that period than was installed in the entire history of the community, said Kostka.

The $140,000 project would enable the community to complete the project. Plans call for the

Students Will Sing for Rotary

Lawrence Group to Give Vocal Program At Tuesday Meeting

The Lawrence College music drama students of Prof. John Koopman will present vocal selections at the meeting of the Appleton Rotary Club Tuesday.

New officers and directors of the Rotary Club for 1963-1964 are Franklin Nehs, president; William H. Zuehlke Jr., vice president; Richard Beelen, treasurer; Fred Semmelhack, secretary; and Lahman Bower, Raymond LeVee, Richard Van Sistine and Gus Zuehlke, directors.

Several 4-H students, under the direction of Courtney Schwartz, county 4-H agent, will give short talks at the meeting of the Northside Kiwanis Club Tuesday. Three members will act as judges and select a winner.

Good Neighbor Fair
Reg Reinke, Myrl Leedom and Richard Herrema of the Northside Kiwanis are co-chairmen for the Good Neighbor Fair at Valley Fair on May 4.

David Brooker, Post-Crescent editor, spoke to the Appleton Lions Club today, before a film on news highlights of 1962. The Lions Club is planning a zone party at the Appleton Elks Club March 21.

Mrs. Eldora Spiegelberg, Appleton public school psychologist, will speak to the Downtown Kiwanis Club Wednesday on "My Impression of West Germany."

The Appleton Breakfast and Noon Optimist Clubs entertained about 50 youth leaders and persons working closely with youth from the city and county at a joint meeting today. Purpose of the meeting was to stimulate interest in the "Boy of the Month" program sponsored by the two clubs. Guest speaker was Walter Zahn, principal of Franklin Junior High School, Green Bay, and district boys' work chairman for many years.

11 Boys at Xavier in Honor Group

Eleven senior boys at Xavier High School have been chosen as members of the National Honor Society and will be inducted in a ceremony at 8:40 a. m. Tuesday. The Rev. Dennis Burke, O. Praem., president of St. Norbert College, will be the guest speaker. Seven junior boys will be honored as probationary members of the society at the induction ceremony. Members are chosen by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, character and service.

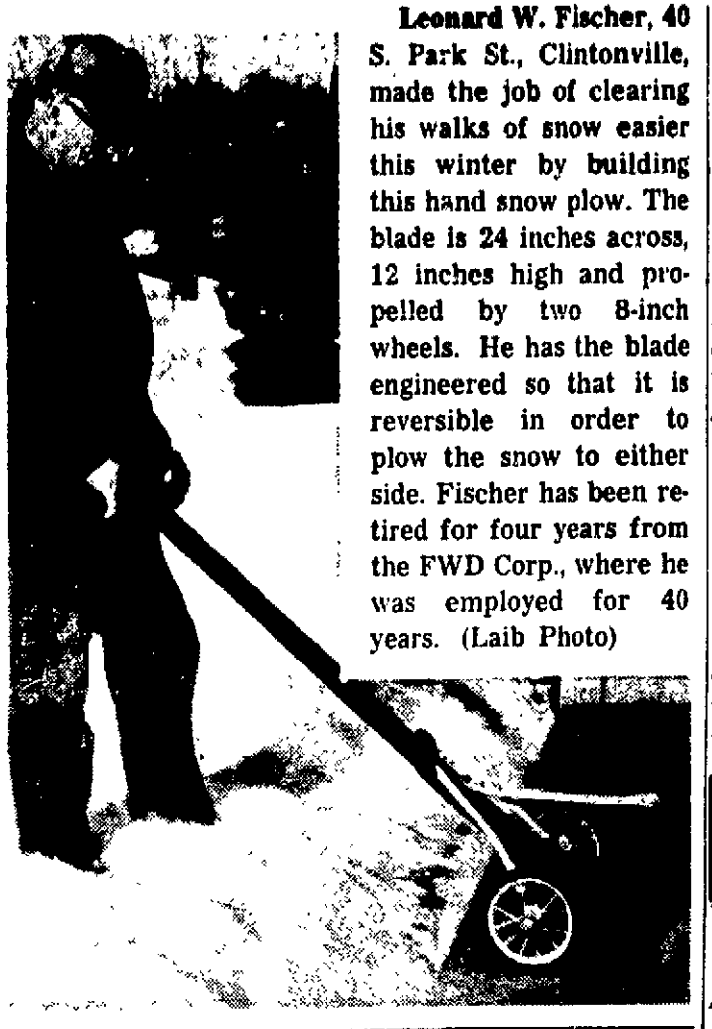

Brother Louis, NHS moderator in the boys department, has announced the seniors chosen as Richard Boots, Timothy Brown, Carl Geenen, Gary Guerts, Kelly Kornely, Daniel Krueztberg, Dennis Pankratz, Thomas Schueppert, Charles Spilker, James Wickesberg and Richard Wiesner.

Juniors to be honored as probationary members are Thomas Arnoldussen, Mark Babbitt, Robert DeBruin, Paul Gloude-mans, Robert Putzer, Floyd Slayton and Rudolf Kundert.

The girls' department held its induction ceremonies on Jan. 30.

Lawrence Soprano Captivates Audience

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — A young woman whose body is chained to a wheelchair but whose spirit and voice soar with the hawk captured the hearts of a Green Bay Symphony Orchestra audience in West High Auditorium Sunday night.

Miss Sandra McKearin of Lawrence College, polio-stricken winner of the orchestra's annual Young Artists competition, was the star of what was, on nearly all counts, the finest concert the ensemble has played this season.

The symphony, building its program around the young soprano, offered a series of popular operatic works: the local premiere of Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" with Russ Widoe as narrator, and a ringing performance of Robert Russell Bennett's colorful "Symphonic Scenario" of music from "South Pacific."

Throughout, the orchestra played with spirit, a strong attack and clean tone.

If it hadn't been Sandra's night, top honors would have gone to Widoe for his cheerful narration of "Peter." He began a bit stiffly but quickly warmed to the story. The "Colonel" was in excellent form.

Orchestral Support
Both he and Miss McKearin enjoyed strong orchestral support. The ensemble played with poise, concentration and authority all through the evening.

From the opening bars of the "Magic Flute" overture it was apparent that the orchestra was ready and eager. The crisp lyricism and lilt with which it swept through "Rosenkavalier" waltzes set a mood that was maintained thereafter.

The clever and colorfully orchestrated "South Pacific" finale capped a highly effective night. This is an unusual piece of scoring, and the orchestra gave it a polished performance. The audience responded by demanding two equally lively encores.

Surplus in 1960
In five of the past six fiscal years — including the final four of the Eisenhower administration and the first full two of the Kennedy administration — the budget deficits incurred add up to an enormous $34.3 billion. Only in 1960 was there a surplus, and then it was only a puny $1.2 billion.

The reason for the deficits hasn't been just skyrocketing government spending, although spending has risen, of course. From fiscal 1958 through this 1963 year ending July 1, the rise in federal spending has been $22.9 billion, well below the

Your Money's Worth

Better a Larger Deficit Than Have a Huge One

BY SYLVIA PORTER
"The way to avoid a huge deficit is to have a large one."

This ironic comment was made off - the - cuff by a university professor at the American Bankers Association's symposium on economic growth in Washington a fortnight ago. Immediately, I looked around to see the reaction of the predominantly conservative group of 300 top industrialists, bankers, economists, etc. It ranged from a look of disgust on the face of the president of one of the world's biggest corporations to a sardonic grin on the face of the president of one of the world's leading banks. The titter which came when the professor paused and shrugged his shoulders before proceeding with his technical address wasn't downright hostile, but it wasn't friendly either.

Serious Wiscrack
Yet, the fact is that this acid sentence dramatizes the philosophy underlying the White House's drive for substantial tax reduction in a year in which President Kennedy is projecting an all-time record budget of almost $99 billion and forecasting a near-record peacetime deficit of $11.9 billion. Actually, it's a deadly serious wisecrack.

Kennedy is having a dreadful time trying to spell out his tax-deficit philosophy in words that would persuade Congress his argument is valid. His advisors are becoming increasingly frustrated as they attempt to explain to the country that there's a difference between a "passive" deficit resulting from a sluggish economy and thus a disappointing tax take and a "stimulating" deficit resulting from efforts to speed up the economy and thus boost the tax take.

Nevertheless, since the wisecrack does capsule the Kennedy administration's present economic philosophy, here's my attempt to explain it.

Must Speed Growth
What's the reasoning? The reasoning is that our punitive tax structure has been the cause of our sluggish growth and, unless we speed our growth, we'll be running huge "passive" deficits year after year. So? So the reasoning is we should slash taxes and risk a big "transitional" deficit on the basis that the tax cuts will spur business and consumer spending, create more paychecks and profits. Thus produce more taxes and eventually balance the budget.

Or better still, to decorate the professor's wisecrack, the way to avoid a huge "chronic" deficit is to plan a large "stimulating" one. (All Rights Reserved)

Deputy Sheriffs Convene Tonight

Discuss Policies Under Which They Will Work for Next 2 Years

A nucleus of deputy sheriffs who will serve under Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice the next two years, will meet tonight to discuss Spice's deputy sheriff organization.

So far, in his three months in office, Spice has handed out 25 deputy cards to unbonded deputies. He estimated he has given 50 cards to bonded deputies which include traffic police, bailiffs, dance hall deputies, personnel in the sheriff's department and chiefs of police.

"I plan to give out several more unbonded cards," Spice said last week. "I want to build an organization that will be small enough to be controlled, but large enough to be effective." Spice said he planned an organization of 125 bonded and unbonded deputies.

Turned Down Some
Spice said he has turned down several former deputies who have asked for cards, and said he has screened each of his deputies to be sure they will be a benefit to his organization. What Spice's association will do during the years Spice is in office will be decided during the meeting tonight.

Deputy cards given out by other sheriffs in other years are invalid and should be destroyed, Spice said. He had no estimate how many cards have been distributed in other years by other sheriffs, but said that each card carries an expiration date. Cards issued by Spice expire in two years and must be renewed after that date.

Critical of Cards
In his campaign speeches last fall, Spice was critical of sheriffs who granted deputy cards "in large numbers." He said in one speech the deputy sheriff's organization could be built into a political machine by the incumbent sheriff.

Deputies must sign an oath of office when they accept cards, Spice said. The cards give the bearer the right to make arrests and to carry a weapon and badge. "I will instruct the deputies," Spice said, "that they must contact the sheriff's department before they act on their cards. We don't want our men to be accused of 'playing policeman'."

Lessons at Meeting
Spice said each meeting held every month will include lessons on law enforcement. If the deputies do not take an active interest in the organization, their cards will be revoked, Spice said that one complaint from a citizen about misuse of the card would mean an automatic revocation if the complaint is found to be valid.

"The card is not to be used as an identification card," Spice said, "or as a means to gain credit. If I hear about the cards being used in that manner, I'll recall them."

"As a former traffic policeman," Spice said, "I am also familiar with the 'deputy' who flashes his card when he is stopped for a traffic violation and expects a certain courtesy. My deputy cards are not courtesy cards," Spice said.

Order of the Arrow Meeting Set Tuesday

CLINTONVILLE — An Order of the Arrow Chapter meeting of the North District will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at St. Rose Catholic school. Mike Doran of the St. Rose Boy Scout troop is chapter chief of the Order of the Arrow.

The Order of the Arrow is a national honor camping society within the framework of the Boy Scouts of America.

About 15 Clintonville boys are members.

Troop Committee Training Planned At Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — A troop committee training session will be held for the North District Valley Council Boy Scouts of America 7 p. m. today at the Christus Lutheran parish hall.

Heading the sessions will be Ted Jozwiak, Clintonville, North District training chairman, who will be working with the troop committee chairman; Howard Canada, Clintonville, North District chairman, who will be with the institutional representatives; Keith Fawcett, Shawano, North District camping chairman, camping and outdoor men; Francis Thompson, Clintonville, North District commissioner, secretaries and treasurers; and Howard Trestler, Clintonville, advancement chairman, the advancement men.

This training is to help troop committees to be more efficient in their jobs in giving support to the scoutmasters of their troops. Troop representatives are expected from New London, Clintonville, Marion, Wittnberg, Shawano and Bonduel.

Waupaca Picks King of Prom

WAUPACA — Classmates at Waupaca High School recently elected Tom Halverson to reign as king at the annual junior prom, "Jaime Paris," April 19.

Halverson named Judy Mittelstaedt as prom queen.

Elected to the court of honor and their dates are James Johnson and Judy Erickson, Oscar Reyes and Mary Lou Braatz, John Townsend and Eileen Ecklund. Crowning the king and queen will be last year's royalty, Don Winkler and Rheta Sorensen.

Iola Village Board Hears Cost Estimate For New Water System

IOLA — The Iola Village Board has heard another set of cost estimates for installation of a water system.

Representatives of the Davy Engineering Company, LaCrosse, discussed procedures, materials and costs, giving a total estimate of $235,000 for the entire project. They said that estimate might be high, but the board could make a lengthier study of the situation and present more exact figures.

In November, another firm gave a $386,000 estimate.

Red Bombers Flew Directly From Russia to U.S. Carrier

Indicates Kremlin Has Satellites in Sky Watching Movements of Ships

BY ROBERT S. ALLEN AND PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary McNamara's delayed disclosure of those Russian reconnaissance bomber flights over four U.S. carriers is only part of this jolting story.

What the at-times-circuitous Pentagon boss didn't reveal is even more significant than what he finally did make known.

Flew Direct To Carriers

For security reasons most of these chilling untold facts cannot be divulged as yet. They are still tightly classified — although, of course, no secret to the Russians; only to Americans.

But it is possible to publish the following extremely important information that McNamara withheld:

In each of these ominous carrier overflights the Soviet reconnaissance-bombers flew directly to their mid-ocean "targets" by the shortest circular routes from bases in Russia. The giant Red planes (known in the West as Bears) did not search for the carriers. They set courses straight for them and flew over them.

Such extraordinary "bullseye flying," as it is being termed by members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is possible only in two ways, as follows:

Possession by Russia of a secret space (satellite) or other high level reconnaissance system that enables the detection and tracking of ships.

Advance Soviet knowledge of the exact location and courses of the four carriers — the Enterprise, Forrestal, Kitty Hawk, and Princeton.

Reds Have Recon Satellites

These highly revealing incidents confirm for them a growing belief they have had for some time that the Russians have in orbit one or more reconnaissance satellites with the same capabilities as our very secret Samos and Ferret.

These U.S. satellites take photographs and monitor communications. The Air Force has at least six Samos in orbit from 150 to 300 miles above the earth. These satellites snap pictures of Russian areas and installations and transmit them to ground receiving stations. The Ferret, in addition to being equipped with a camera similar to those in the Samos, has a complex electronic system for monitoring communications.

The Navy reported that the Bear reconnaissance-bomber that has the capability of being armed with a known Soviet air-to-ground missile that can be launched some 650 miles from a carrier — definitely out of the range of U.S. carrier-based interceptors.

One Navy report on the incidents — also not mentioned by McNamara — stated that a Bear that overflew a carrier was equipped with racks that could have carried nuclear bombs of more than 20 megatons. Photos were taken of this Communist plane showing these bomb racks.

An intelligence report stressed the point that, in direct contrast to these "bullseye" overflights, it took the Navy four days to locate that hijacked Venezuelan freighter.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., had much to do with forcing disclosure of these sinister overflights. He questioned McNamara about the Kitty Hawk incident during the latter's closed-door appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Obviously started and disconcerted, McNamara admitted the accuracy of Goldwater's information.

U.S. Flight To End Back

Two IIG-21s turned back a low-flying armed U.S. reconnaissance plane more than 30 miles south of C. La.

This naval plane was preparing to make a low level reconnaissance over the island when it encountered the two late model MIGs. They bore in directly on the U.S. plane and its pilot heard one MIG flyer yell to his companion, "Let's get him."

The U.S. pilot, with orders to avoid an incident unless fired on, took evasive action and streaked away from the threatening MIGs.

Later, he reported he had they were piloted by Russians.

Fined for Drunkenness

Forbes Prouse, 43, 3801 W. Capitol Drive, was fined $25 or 12 days in the Outagamie County jail when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness. He was arrested by county police Thursday morning in the Town of Grand Chute.

Class Offered at Adult School

The Appleton Vocational and Adult School is taking registration for a class in "small engines".

The class will start at 7 p.m. March 19 and will continue for six weeks on Tuesdays.

The small engines course covers maintenance, repair and adjustment of two and four cycle motors used to drive power lawn mowers.

The course will be conducted on a lecture plan to establish basic theory, after which service and adjustments will become the major activity for the class. Francis Ankerson, staff auto mechanics instructor, will conduct the classes and shop program.

Registration may be completed at the office of the Appleton Vocational and Adult School during the day or evening.

Lawrence Says Anti-Castro Revolt Will Materialize

Officers in His Regime Will Lead
Coup Against Him

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Many people who lately have cherished hopes for an early liberation of Cuba must have had a sinking feeling when they read a news dispatch from San to Domingo the other day stating that some "Western diplomats" arriving from Havana saw little chance of a revolution against Castro. They reported, moreover, that the Soviets had effectively trained the Castro army to squelch any uprising.

But this is an unrealistic view. It is not borne out by the facts of history. For out of the hundred or more revolutions in Latin America in the last half century, rarely indeed has an uprising involved large military forces on both sides.

It is probably true there is today no armed force in Cuba secretly organized which could oust Castro. But a look at past revolutions, not only in this hemisphere but in other parts of the world, will remind us that the most successful "revolution" is the one that arises from within and is usually described by the French phrase "Coup d'Etat."

The dictionary defines it as "a sudden decisive exercise of force whereby the existing government is subverted."

The word "revolution" usually suggests a war between two armies inside a country. But in modern times, even in a country of vast area, it is seldom possible to establish a military organization of any size without running the risk of defeat in the initial stages.

Waits to Strike

A "Coup d'Etat," however, is different. Inside the army, or the navy or the air force, there gradually develops revolutionary "underground." It stays loyal on the surface but waits for the propitious moment to strike.

The same "Western diplomats" — who were given as the source of the information that Soviet technicians had trained the Castro army and furnished them with the latest weapons — made the further point that secret police methods prevalent in Russia had been introduced in Cuba and made unlikely any subversion.

This theory, however, is negated by experience inside dictatorship countries in the past. Who, for instance, had a better secret police than the Czar of Russia, or a more efficient army? And what army was considered more loyal to its monarch than the Czar's troops prior to the revolt in 1917? Yet it was in the middle of World War I that this same Czarist army went over suddenly and almost in its entirety to the revolutionary cause, and the Czar was put to death.

Internal revolutions without organized fighting have occurred in the Middle East and in the Far East and have overthrown governments. Latin America, however, furnishes the most dramatic example of how changes at the top of government are made in what are called "bloodless revolutions." In recent years in Brazil, in Argentina, in Venezuela, in Peru and in Santo Domingo there have been some instances of armed conflict, but these have usually been engineered by high-ranking officers of the army, navy or air force who organize successful plots to force out the incumbent rulers.

The last persons in the world to know anything about an incipient revolution are the resident diplomats of foreign countries. Nor is coming revolt advertised in the newspapers or brought out in public places where tourists can see the preparations. Most revolutions come as a surprise.

Single Stroke

Potential revolutions are numerous in any country where there is economic discontent or where the tyrannical hand of the ruler has wiped out friends and relatives. A general with personal magnetism and skillfulness can often take over an entire army by a single stroke, and the political head of the state will suddenly find himself helpless to resist.

When the anti-Castro revolution does materialize, it will not be initiated by armed bands swooping down on Havana but by officers in the Castro regime itself, most of whom will be patriotic enough to wish to return freedom to their people. The day a "Coup d'Etat" happens in Havana, the entire army will quickly go over to the revolution. For a Cuban army with thousands of Cubans with starving relatives and children threatened with illness as well as continued famine infiltration by underground methods, supported by leaders in exile, is a primary influence that helps to bring a successful revolution. The seeds of revolution are economic. Nikita Khrushchev, for instance, has been politically wise enough to recognize this fact and

Wagner Paces Tiger '5' During 1962-63 Season

Hits 81 of 218 Field Goal Tries, Makes 69 of 113 Free Throw Shots

CHILTON — Jim Wagner, the lone Chilton Tiger eager to be mentioned in recent all-conference selections, wound up as the team's leading scorer, according to statistics released this week by Tiger mentor, Ken VanderVelden.

Wagner tallied 231 points during the .7 game schedule, hitting on 21 of 218 field goal attempts and 69 of 113 charity tosses. The percentages were 37 and 63, respectively. Wagner also was the top rebounder, grabbing off 165. He committed the most personal fouls, 59.

He was given honorable mention in the all-conference sections. Junior guard Jim Vogel was the club's second best scorer with 178 points. Vogel shot 39 per cent from the floor, hitting 77 of 179 attempts and 58 per cent from the charity line with 24 conversions on 42 shots.

Tallies 136 Captain Dick Rollmann tallied 136 points, finishing third high on the team. Tom Dhein, 130 points, was fourth and Tom Silk's 123 points placed him fifth. Other scorers and their point totals include Al Whitty, 85; Steve Compton, 19; Jerry Lodes, 16, and Scott Wilson, 14.

Silk was the team's best marksman from the field. He connected on 43 per cent of his shots for the season with 55 field goals on 128 shots. Wagner's free throw shooting was tops among the regulars.

Throughout the campaign the Tigers frequently were victimized by poor free throw shooting in ties bear out the point. As a team, they shot only 53 per cent from the charity line meshing 218 of 411 chances.

The Tigers shot a respectable 38.4 per cent from the floor, getting 357 field goals on 929 attempts. They averaged 54.8 points a game while compiling a 7-10 overall record.

Act of War?

It seems to be thoroughly accepted that President Kennedy made a slip when he answered a question before a meeting of bankers to the effect that he would accept a tax cut without tax reforms if necessary. But in his last press conference he made what may be a much more important mistake. The United States was not considering a blockade to stop imports of oil to Cuba, said the President, because a naval blockade is an "act of war" and might involve us in a major conflict with the country involved.

The President may be perfectly right about the dangers of such a blockade. But why did he telegraph the hesitation and fear of the United States to Russia?

Last fall, before our aerial reconnaissance established that there were missiles on Cuba, the President suggested that a partial embargo might be employed on goods coming in to Cuba. When he finally accepted the evidence of the missiles, such a blockade was established. It did not mean war with Russia, however serious a diplomatic maneuver it may have been. Russian ships turned back rather than be halted. At least the major portions of the missiles were dismantled and removed. As late as February a great deal was made about the United States' intention to keep any "offensive" weapons from being brought to Cuba, really a form of embargo if it is applied.

Whether or not a real blockade to prevent oil imports or anything else from reaching Cuba is the wisest move now we are not in a position to know and presumably the President is. But by stating that a naval blockade would be necessary to stop the oil imports and that a naval blockade is an act of war, the President has put the words right into Russia's mouth. He has now made it almost impossible to impose such a blockade in the future without declaring war.

When the chips are down its "image" in the world means little to the Soviet Union. But the President has made things much easier for Russia to appear to be the affronted party in case things get desperate enough in Cuba for our government again to come to the conclusion that a blockade is essential.

In effect the President has said that the U.S. does not dare put much pressure upon Cuba because of fear of war. Among the variety of mistakes this nation has made regarding Cuba, his statement may be among the most serious.

Progress at City Garage

Considerable good has already been accomplished by city officials in looking into the operations of the city garage.

It appears there were grounds for some of the allegations made several weeks ago by a group of aldermen who raised serious questions concerning the operations of the garage and conduct of some employees.

Last week, Aids. Kenneth Loos (3rd) and R. P. Groh (8th), who held a closed door meeting with supervisory employees, reported on the five-hour executive session to the common council.

The two aldermen, who conducted the inquiry, said they were in agreement that problems exist at the garage and need immediate correction. They also concluded the meeting was conducted with "a significant amount of success."

No specific charges were preferred against any specific employee at the garage but we feel that some of the incidents and personality conflicts of the past will be eliminated in the future. We commend those aldermen who had the courage to proceed with the inquiry.

It appears the matter has been well handled; the air has been cleared to a major degree.

There is little doubt but that the problems at the garage accumulated over a period of several years. Better management of the operation is needed, along with more respect for authority.

Aids. Loos and Groh plan to meet soon with Robert Bues, the new department of public works director, and appraise him of some of the problems, and request that he institute corrective measures under his administration.

We feel this a logical and fair way of handling the situation as far as everyone is concerned.

'It Was Caucus Business'

The floorleader of the Democratic state senate caucus had a quick and brash answer the other day when a Madison newspaper discovered that he had sent state-paid telegrams to Washington and elsewhere offering support for an aspirant for a vacant federal judgeship in Wisconsin.

"It was caucus business," explained Sen. Zaborski, who also spent state treasury dollars to advise Pat Lucey, the Democratic state chairman, by telegraph of his patronage wishes although Mr. Lucey calls at the capitol almost every day and keeps his office about one mile distant from the Democratic caucus chamber.

The thirty dollars or so involved here are not especially worthy of comment. We would venture a guess there is far more than that sum wasted on similar frivolities in the statehouse each day. But the attitude is significant, the attitude that because a handful of politicians want to make a political impression on a matter that involves purely party affairs, they are entitled to charge the taxpayers for it, with no questions rightfully to be asked.

The legislature many years ago set up an auditing service which is charged with examining the expenditures of administrative agencies to determine whether they were paid according to the authority of law.

We are aware of no statute that permits members of the state legislature to spend state money without check or without limit for telegrams, telephone service, or even postage.

Yet it is one of the worst kept secrets of state capitol life that there is in fact an unlimited expenditure account for those purposes, that it is never audited, and that it is revealed only obliquely and infrequently in situations such as Mr. Zaborski's faux pas.

Let Mr. Keliher, the state auditor, examine these accounts as he examines those of the lesser men in the back offices of the civil service.

Picketing Minstrel Shows

The protests and picketing by members of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of a minstrel show in Whitewater indicates a confused approach to the problems of race discrimination.

The NAACP contends that minstrel shows portray the Negro in a childish, scatterbrained role typical of the stereotype of the southern plantation Negro of slave days. It is quite true that the exaggerated accents and make-up of the minstrel show are almost caricatures and definitely not realistic, particularly today. But this is true regarding almost all races and nationalities.

The Irishman dancing a jig at a St. Patrick Day party in a tall hat, green tie and red nose is hardly complimentary or characteristic of all the Irish. The "Was you dere, Charlie?" stories, Belgian jokes, and the Milwaukee dialect all poke sometimes not so gentle fun at peculiarities of one national group or another. So do the hill-billy characters, the Brooklyn taxi drivers, Italian organ grinders, Chinese laundrymen used in so many amateur and sometimes professional acts. There may be some snobbery in the portrayals but we doubt that many Irish, Dutch or Germans are insulted.

Maintaining local or national characteristics, particularly the humorous ones, should not be discouraged. They add something to the melting pot status of the United States and also serve a little to battle conformity.

The NAACP should learn a lesson from Comedian Allen Sherman. By using the peculiarities of his Semitic people he has not only made a fortune and fame for himself but has humorously accentuated some characteristics of the Jews which has entertained millions and probably improved race relations instead of hampering them.

Looking Backward

Men 20 to 45 Subject to Draft

Quoted from the Appleton Motor for March 12, 1963.

All able bodied male citizens and foreigners who have declared their intentions and voted, between the ages of 20 and 45, except as exempted, constitute the national forces and are liable to serve upon call of the President.

Exempt shall be those physically or mentally unfit, the Vice President, U. S. Judges, Cabinet Officers and Governors; the only son of a widow or aged or infirm parent or parents dependent upon his labor for support; one of two or more sons in a like situation, to be exempted by the father or widowed mother; the only brother of parentless children under 12 dependent as above; the father of motherless children under 12 dependent as above; two of a family household having two others in service as non-commissioned volunteers. No other persons are exempt and no convicted felons are to be enrolled or permitted to serve.

The national forces are divided into two classes, the first class comprising all persons under 35 and all unmarried persons under 45 years of age, and the balance comprising the second class who are not to be called into service until those of the first class have been called.

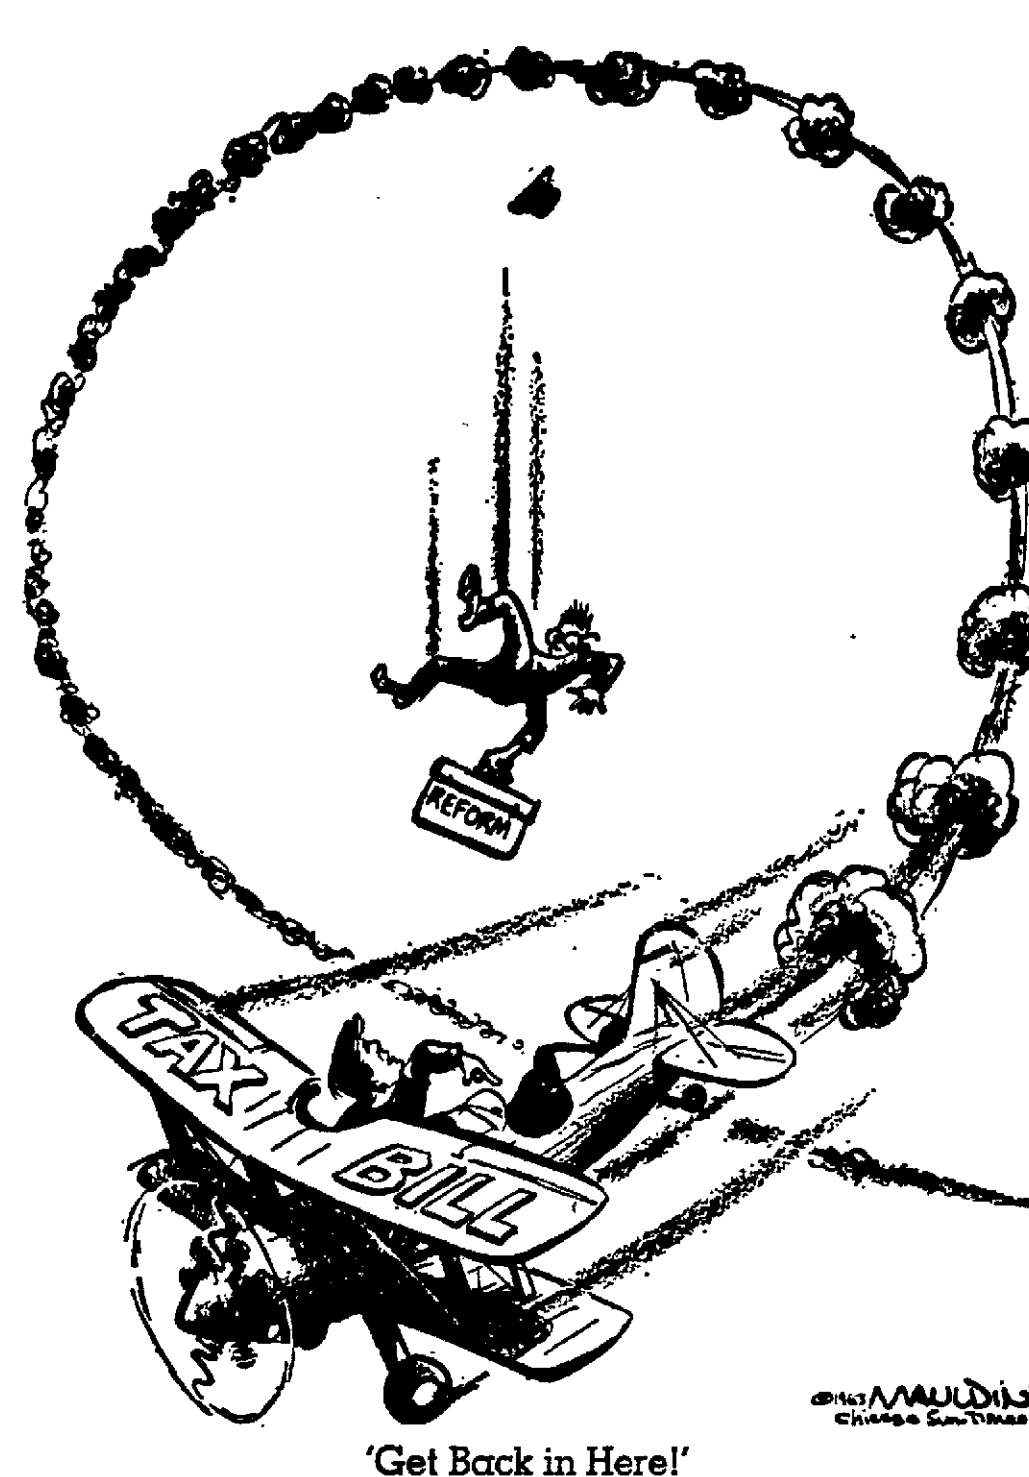

To facilitate enrollment, and the arrest of deserters and spies, the District of Columbia and the Congressional Districts are each made an enrollment district. The President shall divide the territories and undistricted States into one or more such districts each.

The Kimberly squad included Paul Van Dyke, Henry Langenberg, Junior Barrand, Edward Kruger, Ben Weyenberg, Elmer Vanden Boogaard, James Fleweger, Quentin Williams, Clifford Parent and Robert LaBerge.

Ken DuCharme, junior guard on Menasha High School basketball team, led his teammates in scoring honors for the season.

'Get Back in Here!'

Henry Taylor Writes

Is United States Disarming To Try to Mollify Soviet Union?

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Senate Foreign Relations committee member Frank J. Lausche (D., Ohio) has told President Kennedy point-blank — that he now questions Mr. Kennedy's entire position with Khrushchev in the October "conf r o n t a t i o n."

He raised a great, unrevealed issue. And he's mad as a polar bear in Texas about it. But, first, he made this case:

He said he considers the confrontation outcome "strange," "peculiar" and lacking in "fair treatment to the American people."

He said "merely a part of the task was performed and widely publicized just before the election," placing us "back again where we were last October."

STILL MANAGING NEWS

Tearing aside all party labels, the powerful Ohioan accuses both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara of being up to their ears in managing the news.

He accuses Secretary Rusk of attempting to suppress the recent report of the Organization of American States pointing to the perilous difficulties that nations friendly to the United States are having with Khrushchev's Communist base in the Western Hemisphere.

He indicts Secretary McNamara's two-hour TV exposition as "an attempt to lull the American people into the belief that all is well in Cuba."

He reminds Mr. Kennedy that he abandoned the sine qua non — on-site inspection — and had declared it "a dead letter."

Then drawing heavily on both disclosed and undisclosed testimonies before his Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Lausche presented a shocking box score to summarize his contention of an absolutely inexplicable retreat behind the managed news.

HERE'S BOX SCORE

The Senator's box score: Our government says Khrushchev took out 42 missiles. We noisily appeared to refuse Khrushchev's swap of these for our missile bases in Turkey. Yet, calling our missiles "obsolete," we did, in fact, dismantle 15 missile bases in Turkey — and 30 in Italy. Were "obsolete" missiles defending us before October 22? Where are the missiles needed elsewhere in order to justify removing them from Russia's borders?

Our government says Khrushchev took out all 11-28 bombers, also estimated at 42. Yet Secretary McNamara recently admitted to the Foreign Relations Committee that, compared to last July, Castro's air power has still been strengthened by at least 100 Soviet planes. These include MIG-15 and MIG-21 fighters, instantly convertible into bombers merely by mounting bomb racks. McNamara also admitted to the committee that each can carry nuclear bombs larger than those launched by Polaris submarines. Nevertheless, our government publicly plays these down as "defensive weapons" and speaks of "the bombers" as removed.

Moreover, offsetting the 42 11-28's removed, we have ordered the gradual closing of every B-47 jet-bomber base bordering the Soviet Union. This quiet withdrawal represents approximately 900 of our planes vs. Khrushchev's 42.

With a sound of victory, our government has given intense publicity to Khrushchev's withdrawal of an assumed 6,000 soldiers and technicians among the 17,000 or more last admitted to be in Cuba. But at the same time we've quietly ordered the withdrawal of many times this number of ours from Western Europe.

SEARCHING CHALLENGE

Against this box score, Senator Lausche then raised the largest and most searching challenge of all:

He quotes Secretary McNamara's testimony that Mr. Kennedy is "thinking about" phasing out our great Strategic Air Force's aircraft, the B-52 bombers. He construes this as an apparent form of covert disarmament — covert disarmament vis-a-vis the Soviet Union — when coupled with Mr. McNamara's public statement: "I would like to see both the USSR and the United States have a capability of surviving a first strike and retaliating selectively. This would give the world a more stable balance."

Reducing that to layman's language Senator Lausche sees us as determined to have mere parity with the Russians, not nuclear strike superiority, in order to relieve Kremlin fears — a reduction in American power with no assurance that the Russians would do the same thing.

He sees our Cuba behavior as part of this whole package. And surely many Americans have not yet grasped the full dimensions of the Administration thinking inside the actions that are otherwise inexplicable, as queried by this conscientious and courageous Senate stalwart.

Behind the scenes, the whole picture — the whole package — is incredibly larger than we realize. Of that there is no question.

In a Disguised Voice

He Gets Found Out

DES MOINES (AP)—The Rev. Patrick Bacon awoke a little late one morning, and knew he couldn't get to the convent in time for the Mass he conducts there daily.

He relates that he called the convent, tried to disguise his voice, and asked for the time of the Mass.

One of the sisters replied: "Whenever you get here, Father."

himself to a spending program that was greater than anybody expected, and perhaps greater than he had himself expected.

With the heavily increased spending that he had endorsed, it was no longer possible to finance the new income requirements with an income tax increase of less than one per cent. Thus came the effort to raise the effective rates without appearing to do so, as through the proposed elimination of some of the traditional deductions, which no other governor in a quarter of a century has dared or cared to do. Thus came the proposal to split the revenue program into three phases, one of them calling for a three quarters of one per cent income tax boost, one calling for redistribution of tax shares, and another asking for a one quarter of one per cent additional income tax boost to finance the revenue losses expected through the repeal of the existing selective sales taxes which he is also demanding.

MILWAUKEE ANGLE

A good case can be made for the reshuffling of local shares of state taxes, if it is assumed that it is the state's responsibility to equalize local tax rates without regard to local spending policies, locally chosen standards of public service and other factors involving community tastes and appetites. But the governor made only a gesture toward tax redistribution — considerably less, for example, than did Gov. Nelson two years ago.

On the face of it, this "redistribution" was conceived as a political gesture toward politically powerful Milwaukee. Somehow it is difficult to conceive that the legislature, this one or any other, will ever consciously act to penalize low cost, prudent rural and small town governments of Wisconsin for the fact that they have kept taxes down, in order to hand Milwaukee the money equivalent as a kind of reward for the fact that the residents of the metropolis have a higher cost government reflecting more and better services which they have assured through the election of their own local governments.

Secrecy Sometimes Is Cause of Men's Deaths

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A man I used to know some years ago died in New York recently, and when I asked a mutual friend (who happens to be a doctor) the cause of death, he answered "Secrecy."

This was a most provocative reply, and I pressed him to let down the medical barriers and explain what he said. It was really quite simple — and, so the doctor added, fairly common.

The man had two ailments, one affecting the heart and the other the blood. He went to separate doctors for treatment — and did not tell either doctor about the other ailment, because he did not want to be too severely restricted in his diet, his work, or his social life.

As a result, the regimen prescribed for one of the ailments adversely affected the other, and he was carried off before either of his physicians knew what was happening.

This may seem a bizarre little tale, but it occurs more often than the layman realizes. More than a century ago, F. B. Winslow, in his book, "Physic and Physicians," wrote: "Secrecy is commonly mixed up in medical affairs. Some great city practitioners have little closets to indulge this feeling of fanciful patients who do not want to be seen by their fellow sufferers."

Winslow goes on to relate the case of the Comte de Virey, "who carried this mystery so far as to make the slightest indisposition a state secret."

One day the Count called a surgeon to dress a wound in his leg; and when a similar one broke out on the other, he sent for a different surgeon, so that the disordered state of his limbs might not be known. "A circumstance," adds Winslow, "which was the cause of his death."

As an ironic footnote, to a person who inquired for the Count shortly after his death, his secretary said, "He is dead, but he does not wish it to be known."

The recalcitrance of patients must be cited as one of the major factors in the mortality tables. Patients who lie about their symptoms, who fail to follow instructions, who pour pills down the drain and toss diets into the fire, who think that merely visiting a doctor or holding a prescription will magically cure them — all these contribute heavily toward the total of medical "failures."

Asked about the reception of one of his comedies on opening night, Oscar Wilde quipped, "The play was a success, but the audience was a failure." Likewise, patients can fail doctors quite as much as the reverse; for all therapy involves a collaboration of candor.

Reynolds Tax Program Is Most Complicated Ever Offered in State

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Ingenious, but probably impossible, is the nearly universal early assessment of the tax program just put before the legislature by Gov. John W. Reynolds after six weeks of earnest publicity promotion about its charms and virtues.

The merest perusal of this brilliantly complex document perhaps explains the difficulties of those selected Democratic legislators who were invited to the governor's home a week earlier to be briefed on the contents of his revenue plan message. Those politicians were eager enough next morning to leak what they heard to capitol correspondents, but they found it embarrassing to admit that they couldn't remember many of the details, and didn't understand some sections that they thought they remembered.

Their discomfiture becomes clearer with the publication of the text. Nothing quite as difficult to read and to grasp has ever been delivered by any executive to any Wisconsin legislature.

The governor's position, of course, is largely of his own making. He bound himself so securely by his campaign promises, reiterated scores of times since the election, that he had very little room to maneuver. He was confined, for all practical purposes, to the income tax, and to a redistribution of the existing state tax sharing system involving municipal treasuries.

THE DIFFICULTIES

It is reasonably plain that Reynolds told his staff in setting to work on the drafting job that he wanted these conditions met:

1. Keeping the rate of income tax increase below one per cent per bracket of taxable income.

2. Doing something about the so-called "tax islands," but not so much that there will be too much resistance in the legislature that will record an automatic majority of votes against the proposal.

3. Arrange whatever formula is evolved in such a way that the city of Milwaukee can see some gains in the way of local property tax relief.

Something like that might have been achieved, except that the governor also committed

Insomnia Signs Can Be Treated Properly

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
The problem of insomnia is very common. It is more prevalent among the old, but there ARE comparatively young people who develop it, too, as the following letter indicates.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a cure for insomnia? I'm 28 years old. I've had it on and off for five years. Some nights it takes me several hours to fall asleep.

People tell me to try this and that, but nothing helps. My doctor will not give me sleeping pills. — MRS. J.J.

And here is another letter on the subject concerning people who are nearly a half century older:

Dear Doctor: My husband and I are past 70 and have trouble sleeping. What is your treatment? What drugs should we buy? — MRS. S.L.

Both letter writers want some sort of means, preferably a pill, that will permit them to sleep peacefully and quietly the whole night through.

How widespread is the problem of insomnia? There are no statistics because there's no real way of defining the word. Does it mean never being able to get to sleep promptly? Or seldomly? Or occasionally?

There are all degrees of insomnia. Does it mean having to wait an hour to get to sleep? Or two, or three? How many? Does it mean waking up in the night? If so, how often? Does it mean awakening once or twice in eight hours? Or isn't it insomnia unless you hear the clock strike the hour at least five or six times in the course of the night?

All of These

Well, as far as I'm concerned, insomnia covers any of these conditions. If you have consistent trouble getting to sleep, or if you regularly complain of waking up too often, and it interferes with getting enough rest during the hours you reasonably set aside for sleeping, I'm willing to call it insomnia — and to reveal what I know about overcoming it.

For insomnia CAN be overcome. There are certain rules you will have to know, and understand, and believe. Not many, but a few essential ones.

First: Why is it that babies rarely have this trouble, but that many people frequently do? The cure for insomnia doesn't consist of finding some magic sleep-producer. The real cure is to FIND OUT WHAT KEEPS YOU AWAKE. Simple, isn't it? And logical. And basic.

Second: You must do something about these causes. This may require some moderate change in your way of living. You can't stubbornly hang on to your sleep-destroying habits and still expect somebody or something else to provide an easy way to put you to sleep.

Third: You MUST develop confidence in your ability to sleep. Nobody ever learns to lose state while telling himself in his secret heart that he always knew he would fall down. In fact, nobody ever accomplished anything truly worthwhile without an honest feeling that he would succeed if he tried.

Tomorrow we'll continue with insomnia.

Beer Injury

Dear Dr. Molner: Does beer injure the liver? I've heard so much I'd like the facts. — M.E.

Moderate consumption of beer won't injure the liver. But if you mean heavy drinking, liver damage is one of the likely consequences of excessive use of alcohol in any form.

Note to E.E.F.: The fontanelle, or "soft spot" of a baby's skull is there to allow the brain to grow. After the essential growth has been reached, the bones finally fuse solidly.

Attention all women! For the pamphlet, "The Pre - Menstrual Blues," write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling. This pamphlet may help you!

State GOP Chiefs Like Rockefeller

Little Doubt Among Leaders That He Will Win Nomination in 1964

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — The men and women who run and finance the Republican party of Wisconsin thoughtfully examined at close range during the weekend the man who will probably be their standard-bearer in the next national election, and apparently liked what they saw.

There isn't much doubt in the minds of any of the practicing Republicans of the state that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York is the overwhelming favorite for the nomination, or that his campaign for the nomination has already passed the preliminary stages.

Many of the key leaders of the state and county organizations turned out here for the annual financing dinner of the party to consider his philosophy and his program.

Willing to Defect
They found a man who is apparently willing to defect, within limits, to the more conservative orientation of the Republicans of the Middle-west.

Only occasionally during his speech at the $100 a plate banquet did Rockefeller sound like the champion of Republican liberalism that has been his reputation since he rose to national prominence as the head of the largest state of the country.

Quite plainly patterning his speech to what his audience presumably wanted to hear, Rockefeller extolled the traditional virtues of Republicanism, and had an attentive, respectful and cordial audience as his reward.

Some of the old Republican hands in the reasonably filled and cavernous Milwaukee auditorium might have closed their eyes and imagined they were listening to a Senator Taft, or perhaps that latter day darling of Republican traditionalists — Sen. Barry Goldwater or Arizona.

The governor hit such welcome keywords — to Republican ears — as fiscal integrity, balanced budgets, individual responsibility, anti-Communism, the efficacy of free economic enterprise, the superior values of democratic local government over centralized national administration, freedom of information, and spiritual revival.

Only occasionally did he recall his own identity as the exponent of Republican modernism, as when he mildly cautioned that the conservative must learn to accommodate himself to changing facts of national and international life, and when he cautioned that the broad labels in contemporary politics such as "liberal" and "conservative" can be dangerous if over-emphasized.

The Republican party, he said, has a high responsibility to present to the country "fresh approaches to the preservation of the values we hold so deeply."

The Rockefeller plan for the capture of the Wisconsin delegates to the 1964 Republican national convention, who will be elected in the spring primary next year, is already well developed but it may not be announced for months.

There is an apparent determination to work through the established party organization here, which will suit the convenience of the candidate and the party machine since it seems unlikely that there will be any other Republican aspirant in the field.

Some individual local politicians who want a place on the Rockefeller delegate slate and ambitious free lances who have already volunteered their services have been informed politely that the governor wants to work with the party organization.

Line of Thinking
The acceptance of the nomination of Rockefeller among typical local party workers is shown by the line of their current conversations.

There is speculation about the possible damage wrought to his prospects by his divorce a year ago. There is also a good deal of talk about the likelihood that a Rockefeller campaign would be expertly directed by professional specialists with ample campaign treasuries, a fact of some importance to the working Republicans who have encountered the depth of organization and the financial power of the Democrats since the ascendancy of President J. F. Kennedy and his wealthy family.

Ralph F. Raiche Succumbs at 28

Ralph F. Raiche, 28, 2009 1/2 N. Meade St., dental technician and well-known Appleton outdoorsman, died at 2:30 a.m. Sunday after a 3-day illness. His widow, Leandra, was a former receptionist and secretary at the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Funeral services will be 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at St. Theresa Catholic Church. Friends may call at the Wichmann Funeral Home after 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Rescue Aged Man Trapped Inside Cellar of Home

Town of Grand Chute constable John Arft rescued a man in his 90's who was locked in the basement of his home about 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

A couple who had a business appointment with August Furman, over 90, found the house dark when they arrived Sunday evening but saw the old man in the basement preparing a place to sleep, and called the authorities.

Authorities were unable to get Furman out through a basement window, and called a locksmith to open the door.

Arft said Furman, who stays with his daughter, Mrs. Cora Diehl, at 2136 W. Wisconsin Ave., had returned to the house and found the door locked. He got into the basement but then found he was unable to get into the house from there. He had been in the cold basement for several hours, Arft said. His daughter is out of town and he was staying at the house alone. He had been unable to attract attention by calling, and so was preparing a place to sleep in the basement.

Dale Station To Stay Open

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The public service commission has turned down a request of the Soo Line for a review of its recent decision denying the company authority to close its station at Dale in Outagamie County.

The commission originally held that the Dale station might be closed if a program of dualized service between the Dale and Fremont stations could be worked out agreeably with the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. But it said the railroad has not referred to such a merger.

U. S. Plans Satellites Capable of Spotting Sneak Nuclear Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans to launch this fall the first of five pairs of Tandem satellites capable of spotting sneak nuclear blasts as far away as the sun.

The Senate-House Atomic Committee heard about the preparations Friday from Dr. Alois W. Schardt, deputy director of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency.

He said improvements in earth-based systems now assured reliable detection of furtive nuclear shots as far out as the moon.

Housekeeper for Chilton Priest Dies

CHILTON — Miss Elizabeth C. Roppuld, 72, 60 E. Main St., housekeeper for the Rev. Henry Schmidt, pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church died at Oshkosh Sunday after a short illness.

Miss Roppuld was born Feb. 7, 1891, at Stevens Point. She had been serving as housekeeper for priests for the last 56 years, with Father Schmidt since 1934.

Funeral services will be a solemn requiem at 11 a.m. Wednesday at St. Mary Church with burial in Sacred Heart Cemetery, Sherwood.

New London Youth Pays $25 Fine

OSHKOSH — Richard Eisenbraut, 18, route 2, New London, was fined $25 and costs by County Judge James Sit'er this morning after he pleaded no contest to a disorderly conduct charge. He was arrested at 1:54 p.m. Saturday at the Cops Department Store in Oshkosh.

Judy Stellwagen New County Home Agent

Takes Over Outagamie Post Being Vacated by Mrs. Kathleen Walsh

Judy Stellwagen will become Outagamie County's twelfth home agent on June 25. She will replace Mrs. Kathleen Walsh who has been employed in this position since June, 1962, and is resigning as of April 1.

The new home economics agent will graduate from the University of Wisconsin June 10 with a bachelor of science degree in home economics education and a minor degree in general science. While completing her schooling, she was employed during summer vacations as a dietitian's aide at the Community Memorial Hospital in La Grange, Ill. She also was employed as a member of the milk testing panel for the University of Wisconsin. This panel was conducting research on sterile concentrate milk as a new milk product.

4-H Club Member
She was born Sept. 23, 1941, in Milwaukee. Since then her parents have moved to La Grange, Ill. She is one of three children and has a sister and a brother. Both of her parents and her older sister are employed as teachers.

While living in Milwaukee, she was a member of the SC's 4-H Club for six years. As a 4-H'er she took projects in clothing, home improvement, and junior leadership. She served as a member of the Milwaukee County 4-H

New Finance Firm Starts in Appleton

Associates Finance Corp. has opened a new personal loan office at 1000 W. College Ave.

L. L. LaMere has been named to manage the local office. The Appleton office is the firm's 70th office in North America. Loans up to $5,000 are available through the new office.

The corporation is a subsidiary of Associates Investment Co., South Bend, Ind., a time sales financing and loan firm with assets in excess of one and one-quarter billion dollars, and offices in 45 states and Canada.

Other company offices in Wisconsin are in Milwaukee (five), Racine and Wausau.

Club Council and was elected treasurer.

As county home economics agent, Miss Stellwagen will be conducting the program with the Outagamie County home demonstration organization of which there are 855 members in 54 groups. These groups are active during the months of September through April. During this time they study projects in the area of family living, because their aim is for better home and family life.

Train Leaders
She will also be assisting with 4-H and youth programs in the county by training leaders and members in the home economics projects.

The home economics agent conducts the total home economics education program in the county. Through the program, the latest in research and technology in the field of home economics will be brought to the women in the county; homemakers will have an opportunity to study home and community problems under trained leadership; and, homemakers have an opportunity to practice and develop leadership.

The cooperative extension program is an informal education service provided to the people of the county by the United States Department of Agriculture, the University of Wisconsin, and

Advertising to be Conference Topic

Small Business Conference to Open March 27 at Madison

"Advertising Methods for small Business Owners and Managers," will be the topic of the second annual Wisconsin Small Business Management Conference in Madison on March 27.

The one-day conference will be held at the Wisconsin Center in Madison. The conference is planned for owner-managers of small independent businesses in manufacturing, retail, wholesale and service areas, and their advisors. It is offered by the University of Wisconsin Extension Division through its Department of Commerce. Last year 150 businessmen attended the first conference.

More Advertising
Recent studies of small business by the University of Wisconsin indicate a growing interest in the use of advertising. In response to this interest, the school is devoting the conference to the problem of developing a realistic advertising plan and program in the small business.

The main speaker will be John Paul Goodwin, president of Goodwin, Dannenbaum, Littman and agency in Houston, Texas. He is Wingfield Inc. an advertising lecturer on advertising and marketing at the University of Houston, and has made marketing and advertising presentations to many groups of advertisers in New York, Chicago and throughout the Southwest.

The program will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and a welcome at 9 a.m. by L. H. Adolfson, dean of the UW Extension Division. Goodwin will speak at 9:15 a.m. on "Small Business Attitudes toward Advertising: Costs and Benefits." After a question period and coffee break, Goodwin will speak at 10:30 a.m. on "How to Plan an Effective Advertising Program: Your Methods, Procedures and Budget."

Select Group Leaders

After a noon luncheon at the Wisconsin Center, workshop sessions will be held at 1:15 and 2:45 p.m., with small group discussion of material presented by Goodwin. Worksheets and other tools for analyzing one's business and planning an effective advertising program in a small business will be presented. Group leaders will be selected from the university and business for their specialized knowledge in advertising and marketing, especially with regard to small business. The conference will adjourn at 4:30 p.m.

The conference is presented in cooperation with the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, the Wisconsin Bankers' Association, the Small Business Administration, and the UW School of Commerce.

No Easy Solution for Foreign Funds of U. S.

liberal in giving away the wealth of this country."

The problem of U.S.-owned foreign currencies is so complex that it seems to attract attention only when congressmen take these funds to finance junkets around the world.

3 Major Sources

U.S.-owned foreign funds come from three main sources:

1. The sale of surplus wheat and other crops. Under the law, friendly countries may pay for this with their own currency instead of U.S. dollars.

2. Grants of economic aid. Under this program, an American manufacturer ships his commodities to a foreign land. The United States pays him in dollars. The foreign land sets up an account with an equivalent or counterpart amount in foreign currency. Ninety per cent of this account reverts to the foreign land for its use. The remaining 10 per cent becomes U.S.-owned funds.

3. Repayment of loans. The law provides that some foreign nations may repay their loans in foreign currencies.

U. S. Holds $3.875 Billion

President Kennedy, in his budget message to Congress, estimated that during the present fiscal year ending July 1 the United States owned $3,875,000,000 worth of this foreign currency.

Of this total the law set aside $2,542,000,000 worth for use by foreign countries that the United States wants to help.

That left $1,332,000,000 for the United States to use, maintaining embassies, paying foreign employees, printing books, building military housing, conducting research in the foreign lands.

The bulk of this money is in eight countries: Burma, India, Indonesia, Israel, Pakistan, Poland, Yugoslavia and Egypt. There the supply of the foreign currency overwhelms the needs and desires of the U.S. embassies.

Big Surplus in India

In India, for example, the United States will have a supply of $362 million worth of rupees in 1964. Officials estimate the embassy in New Delhi will use about $24 million worth that year. That will leave a supply of $338 million worth, enough for 14 more years. As foreign aid increases, the supply will grow bigger.

Here is where the paradox about congressmen comes in.

With their U.S. government-financed junkets, they spend $500,000 worth of counterpart funds and other U. S.-owned currencies a year. But they seldom visit the countries that have a huge supply of these currencies. Harvey said that congressmen have used only $22,000 worth of Indian rupees in 5½ years.

U. S. Must Buy France

But in France the U.S. Embassy needs more foreign currencies than it owns. In 1964, the embassy in Paris will have a supply of $12 million worth of counterpart and other funds, but it will need $168 million worth of francs for all its activities. As a result, whenever a congressman uses these funds in France, the United States will have to buy francs with dollars to make up the loss.

The use of counterpart and other foreign funds by congressmen does not come under the scrutiny of the General Accounting Office which has the power to look into every financial corner of government except in Congress.

But the GAO has become concerned about the use—or the lack of use — of counterpart funds by other departments of government, especially when the United States wants to halt its flow of U.S. dollars and gold overseas.

For example, the GAO believes the Agency for International Development overstates the case when it talks of causing inflation by using counterpart funds overseas.

"Of course, there would be inflation if all the money was used at once," said George H. Staples, associate director of GAO's civil accounting and auditing division. "But there is a middle ground, and we think better use can be made of the money."

In a recent report submitted to Congress by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, the GAO cited three ways in which it felt the United States could make better use of counterpart funds and other U.S.-owned foreign currencies.

First, the GAO said the United States should use more of the foreign currencies when they are in heavy supply and it cited a case like Poland to show this is not being done. The GAO said the United States could pay Social Security benefits in zlotys rather than dollars to Polish citizens who once worked in the United States.

Foreign Exchange Problem
The State Department says a foreign exchange problem complicates this. Under Polish law, the U.S. Embassy would have to pay zlotys at a rate of 24 to a dollar while a Polish citizen can take the dollar and cash it in for 72 zlotys at Polish government offices. The department says recipients of Social Security benefits would be penalized if the United States paid them in zlotys instead of dollars.

The GAO cites other examples: Army post exchanges in Germany bought $1,670,000 worth of supplies from Yugoslavia and India in 1960 and, at the insistence of the two countries, paid for them in dollars instead of dinars and rupees; the United States rented space at the Poznan International Fair in Poland and paid its rent in dollars instead of zlotys.

Some Funds Set Aside
Second, the United States, according to the GAO, sometimes buys foreign currencies when it owns counterpart funds that have been set aside for future projects.

In France, Germany, Italy and Britain, the GAO said, the United States could have kept down its purchases of foreign currencies by $150 million in 1960 if it had dipped into these other idle counterpart funds on the promise of putting it back when they were needed.

Finally, the GAO said that the United States loses money by depositing much of its foreign currencies in banks that pay little or no interest.

At the end of 1959, the GAO said, the United States owned $46.6 million worth of lira, most of it deposited in the low-interest paying Bank of Italy. The GAO said the United States could have earned $475,000 a year if the funds had been deposited in a commercial bank. U.S. Embassy officials say they deposited the money in the Bank of Italy to support the Italian government's anti-inflation policy, but the GAO said Italy now has the third largest supply of gold and foreign reserves in the world and can afford to help the United States hold down its flow of gold overseas.

Orchestra at AHS Has Student Concert

The Appleton High School orchestra presented a concert to the student body Thursday under the direction of Harold Heckerl. The orchestra performed "Music for the Royal Fireworks" by Handel, "The Great Gate of Kiev" by Mussorgsky, and a selection from Schubert's "Fifth Symphony."

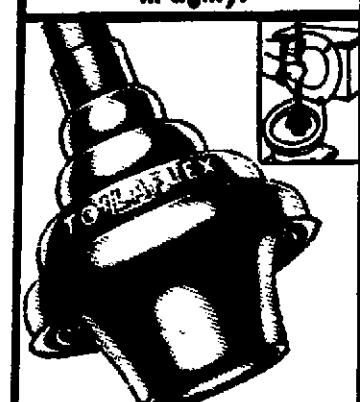

James Buschner, a senior from Lawrence College, conducted the "Choral Prelude" by Bach. Several members of the concert band appeared with the orchestra.

Essie Williams, Before her death at age 80, left such complicated instructions for use of her Hudson, Wis., home that they couldn't be fulfilled. She envisioned making the home quarters for "genteel and refined spinsters or widows." But Miss Williams barred ink and medicines from bedrooms, tacks from the walls, changing the color schemes, installing an oil burner and she left pages of orders on how to care for the premises. The city of Hudson now has condemned the property which will become a parking lot. The picture at left, taken when Essie was a girl, shows her riding a pony as her parents watch from the front porch. ## Blasts Intellectuals

Nik Outlines Red Meaning of Freedom

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has just straightened the Russians out on what freedom means, if they had any doubts.

And while he was at it he shifted emphasis a bit on Stalin whom he denounced in 1956 as a monster and murderer.

At that time the picture of Stalin Khrushchev developed was that of a man who increased in cruelty. Now he is making the dictator out to be a mental case. Two years ago the Russian communist party promised the people freedom of speech, press and assembly.

Since freedom is a relative term this would be, if carried out, an improvement of anything the Soviet people had under Stalin.

There is no doubt they have had a greater sense of freedom under Khrushchev than Stalin permitted.

A year ago Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times, revisiting Russia after some years, wrote: "The strongest and deepest tendencies in Soviet society appear today to be firmly oriented toward Western liberal ideals."

"With few exceptions the leaders of Soviet thought in all the more advanced areas of human knowledge are more attracted to ideals of a humanistic nature than to the conventional materialism of Marxist thought."

This development apparently went beyond anything Khrushchev had in mind until he began to consider it a menace. Last week he called a halt.

He branded Russia's rebellious intellectuals anti-Communists who threaten to undermine the Soviet regime.

Challenge Party

They had challenged the authority—or the good judgment—of the Communist party in cultural affairs.

Khrushchev aimed straight at Ilya Ehrenburg, 72-year-old leader of the liberal forces.

But his words were looked upon as a warning to writers, painters, composers and other artists. Ehrenburg had given voice to their feelings: A plea for peaceful co-existence between the official approved Socialist realism, whatever that is, and art forms imported from the West.

Khrushchev said a liberal victory on this issue would mean "a blow at our beloved revolutionary achievements in the area of Socialist art."

This sounds vague, and it is, but it contains two points:

1. The Russian intellectuals are getting sick of being told they must think in artistic terms the Communist party considers best for itself.

2. Khrushchev told them to cut it out and do what they're told. Thus he told them any freedoms they thought they had are extremely limited.

This doesn't solve the problem since this kind of dictation by the party could have been imposed and accepted 46 years ago when the revolution was new and the masses of the Russian people were illiterate—but not today.

As they increase in education and are more exposed to Western ideas and achievements, they will make comparisons with their own culture and become increasingly discontented where they see disadvantages for them.

It is in this that the West perhaps has its greatest hope for some eventual peaceful solutions with Russia.

The more the Russians increase in education and material well-being, the less they can be led into

French Miners Plan Motorcade to Paris

PARIS (AP)—Striking coal miners plan a mass motorcade from the pits to Paris Wednesday. They want to present their case for a wage hike directly to President Charles de Gaulle's government.

The motorcade is planned by workers at the mines around Merlebach, in the Lorraine basin. Miners from other areas may join.

Now in the 11th day of their walkout, militant miners pledged at meetings Sunday not to go back until they get a 40-hour week and an 11 per cent increase over the $5.80 a day they average now. The government has offered a 5.7 per cent hike, spread over a year, claiming any more would be inflationary.

war by a Communist party which has ideological goals that come into conflict with their own human and intelligent ones.

May Crack Down

If the intellectuals seek to push their luck at this moment—which is a transition point between early Russian poverty and ignorance and modern knowledge and comparative opulence — the Communist party may crack down brutally.

Nevertheless, the unrest is there and there is nothing for it to do but grow.

Khrushchev's mention of Stalin was in an attempt to point out the achievements of the revolution Stalin guided so long.

But whereas seven years ago Stalin's atrocities were viewed as the result of a simple increase in cruelty, now Khrushchev emphasizes that the late dictator suffered from a "persecution mania."

In other words, Khrushchev is making allowance for Stalin's misdeeds on the grounds that he wasn't mentally responsible.

This in effect is a whitewash for the Russian Communist party whose leader Stalin was.

"The car went onto the tracks and I wanted to scream. I saw bodies flying."

She said that three persons were hurled from the car onto her front yard. The train carried the car nearly 2,000 feet toward the mouth of a tunnel for which the community of Tunnel City was named. Authorities pulled three other bodies from the wreckage.

Visited Hospital

Monroe County authorities said there were electric signals at the first crossing but none at the second, about 150 yards from the first.

Authorities said that Mrs. Sherwood, who had three other children, and other occupants of her car were returning home from a Tomah hospital where they had visited the woman's mother. The weather was overcast but it was not snowing, although roads were somewhat slippery.

Mrs. Sherwood was separated from her husband, authorities said.

The train was not damaged and no passengers were injured. Others who lost their lives in Wisconsin traffic accidents over the weekend were:

Mrs. Robert Bell, 48, and her son, Donald, 26, of rural Platteville; Donald McGinnis, 18, of Watertown; Allen Dalzell, 17, of La Crosse; Rodney C. Goers, 21, of Waterloo and William L. McClone, 18, of Oshkosh.

Local Officials Oppose Tax Bill Revising Re-Distribution

Mayors, City Managers Discuss Proposal at Saturday Meeting

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — The revised tax redistribution program outlined by Gov. John Reynolds in his budget message last week ran into firm opposition from a number of Fox River Valley community officials meeting in Green Bay Saturday.

The program was outlined to mayors and city managers during the third in a series of informal gatherings to discuss mutual problems.

The meeting also produced a firm commitment from Sen. Leo P. O'Brien, Green Bay. That his government and veteran's affairs committee will hold a hearing on a bill granting counties the option of creating the position of county executive.

Died in Committee
The bill, sponsored by assemblyman Jerome Quinn of Green Bay, died in O'Brien's committee during the last legislative session.

The governor's tax redistribution system was outlined to the group by Richard Jansen, Green Bay comptroller, who described it as a "socialization of the tax rate in Wisconsin."

The bill changes the formula by which state aids are returned to individual communities.

The newest aspect of the bill involves taking the utility tax and sending it back to communities according to their equalized valuation, Jansen said.

The bill was denounced by those present as taking money from communities with solid tax bases and giving it to communities with lower bases.

As an example, Jansen said Green Bay last year received $613,000 in utility taxes. Should the Reynolds formula be adopted, the city would lose $103,000, the comptroller said.

Pay to State
Under state law, public utilities pay their property tax bills to the state, which returns 65 per cent of the amount to the community in which the facility is located, 20 per cent to the county and retains 15 per cent for state use.

Under the new system proposed last week, the state "would cream 17 per cent off the 65 per cent

Commute Term Of S. Dodge

Former Shawano Mayor Eligible for Immediate Parole

MADISON (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds commuted the prison sentence of Sherburn J. Dodge today to make the former Shawano mayor eligible for immediate parole from a nine-year term for stock fraud.

Reynolds said he issued the commutation order on the strength of testimony from Dr. Fred J. Ansfield, a University of Wisconsin cancer research expert, who said Dodge has less than two years to live.

Ansfield told Reynolds that Dodge is suffering from cancer of the kidneys and lungs and that he has voluntarily served as a "human guinea pig" in experimental treatments of the disease. Some of the experiments have brought "immeasurable" benefits, Ansfield said in a letter to Reynolds.

The 56-year-old Dodge was convicted last year of stock frauds totaling $89,000, and of filing a false net worth statement with the State Department of Securities. The former mayor also was convicted of selling unregistered securities. He is serving his sentence in state prison at Waupun.

Nation Lags in Providing Jobs, Kennedy Says

ty is costing us some $30 billion to $40 billion of additional goods and services annually. This means a considerably lower standard of living than we would otherwise enjoy.

"More seriously — ominously — it means we are doing less than our best in staffing ourselves for the struggle for freedom at home and abroad that now commands our energies and resources on an unprecedented scale, and in ever more demanding forms."

Kennedy said the net growth in the labor force in this decade is estimated at 13 million, or more than 50 per cent greater than in the '50s. He said that unless job growth is also accelerated, unemployment is bound to rise.

More Teachers
Kennedy said it was a singular fact that nearly two-thirds of the new jobs added to the economy in the past five years have been in state and local government, for the most part in teaching. He said much more education and training is needed to arm workers with skills needed for changing job needs.

One of the most significant chapters in the manpower report was one devoted to the rapid gain in productivity. It showed that private output has increased about 60 per cent in the economy in the 15-year period 1947-61.

However, the report said more than four-fifths of this gain was made possible by increased output per manhour and only a small fraction due to increases in man-hours worked.

Increase in Output
The rate of productivity increase was clocked at 3.2 per cent annually in the 1947-57 period, at 2.9 per cent annually in 1957-61, and at 4 per cent in 1962. It suggested the rate would rise significantly if the level of production increased.

Kennedy said only an expanding economy providing more nearly full employment can relieve labor pressures for the 35-hour work week and resistance to technological change, pressures he said that "cannot be resolved by words."

"Ours is a rich nation," the President said, "but not inexhaustibly so. There are 32 million Americans who are still on the fringes of poverty, and worse. A nation can waste its resources as surely as an individual can."

It had agreed to the principle of decentralization of government for the tribesmen who had warred for 18 months against the late dictator Abdel Karim Kassem.

that is now returned," Jansen said.

The extra money would then be returned to communities in the form of state aids to education. This, according to Jansen, would result in a decrease of present state aids to some communities, while other communities would receive increased aids.

Jansen predicted communities with firm tax bases, such as those in the Fox River Valley, would either have to increase taxes to continue current programs, or cut back some of their activities.

The community officials agreed the bill sponsored by Quinn, which recently passed the Assembly 81-7, would mark the first step in the process of modernizing county government.

Give Option
Quinn's bill would give all counties the option to create a county executive. Those at the meeting indicated they felt Quinn's bill should be allowed to pass through the legislative machinery before additional bills follow.

They discussed a proposed bill submitted by assemblyman David Martin of Winnebago County which would require the eight Wisconsin counties having populations between 100,000 and 500,000 create a county administrator's office and change the formula for representation on the county board.

Martin's bill came as the result of a "grass roots" effort by a group of citizens and newspaper officials in the populated counties.

Details of the bill were outlined by John B. Torinus, editor of the Appleton Post-Crescent who said it would "give fair representation to both city and rural areas."

Under the terms of the bill, representation on a county board would be determined on the basis of assembly districts, with each district having five seats. This would reduce the Brown County board from its present 51 seats to 15.

Torinus said the group backing Martin's bill also favored the Quinn bill "as a first step." He said the Martin bill would carry county reorganization further and indicated the group would be willing to carry the fight into the next legislative session should it be killed this time.
